

Community Calendar

Saturday, October 17

● The WSSU Young Socialist Alliance will sponsor two classes on, "The History and Origin of Slavery," on Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Winston-Salem State University Library and Sunday, October 18, at 12 noon at the Militant Book Labor Bookstore. Classes will be lead by Macea Dixon.

Monday, October 19

● Mr. Charles McLean, former field secretary for the NAACP, will address the regular weekly meeting of the Greater Winston Kiwanis Club at 12:30 p.m. on "The Direction and Objectives of the NAACP for the 1980's."

● Dr. Margaret Straw will speak at the YWCA at 12:00 noon on "Practical Ideas for Weight Loss and Maintenance." Dr. Straw is Director of the Dietary Management program at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine. Her talk is part of the on-going Contemporary Women's Series at the YWCA. For further information, call 722-5138.

Tuesday, October 20

● There will be slimnastics held at the 14th Street Recreation Center at 2020 N.E. 14th Street on Tuesday morning from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and Thursday evening from 8:00 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. There is no admission. Instructor is Amatullah Saleem.

● The YWCA is offering a large variety of swim classes at its Clover Street Pool to include all levels of swimming skills as well as all age levels. Classes begin in mid-September and the time to register for them is now. Call the YWCA at 722-5138 for a complete schedule.

Wednesday, October 21

● Learn how to keep warm this coming winter and reduce heating costs, too! Come to the YWCA from 10:30 a.m.-12:00 p.m., where a Duke Power representative will speak on, "How To Conserve Heat." This program is part of the YWCA, "Options For Living" series for women and men over 50. There is no fee. The series is co-sponsored by the Downtown Church Center.

Masons Hold 11th Annual Session

"Brotherhood and Advancement," apparently was the general theme of discussion, when some 500 Prince Hall Masons met last week in Wilson.

The group was attending the 11th annual session of Prince Hall Grand Lodge of North Carolina and Jurisdiction. The three day session got underway Tuesday, Oct. 6, at Reid Street Community Center there. Luncheons and committee meetings were held at Holiday Inn.

William A Clement, Grand Master of the North Carolina order, delivered his annual state of the order address at the Wednesday morning meeting. Emphasis was on a Four "B" Program -- Ballot, Books, Bucks, and Brotherhood. Clement stated that progress had been made in each of the four areas during the past year.

"As I travel throughout the state, I have observed that black people are becoming more aware of the importance of Voter Registration," he said. "We must continue to be involved in our education delivery system, as well as, our economic development and genuine brotherhood, for these are among the basic things we believe will improve the quality of life for everybody, but especially blacks."

Clement, who lives in Durham, is completing his first year as head of the state organization. He succeeded the late Bishop Herbert B. Shaw.

The masonic organization contributes annually to Central Orphanage at Oxford, the NAACP, and the United Negro College Fund, as well as, awarding several scholarships to colleges and universities.

The Wednesday evening banquet and the Thursday morning session included the ladies of the Order of Eastern Star. Among those attending were Mrs. Elizabeth Tilly of Winston-Salem, Grand Matron of the North Carolina OES; and Mrs. Maggie Stong, Past Grand Matron of the order.

The fellowship banquet and the joint meeting was initiated during the time that Clark S. Brown of Winston-Salem was head of the state-wide masonic order. Brown presided at the Thursday morning session.

Dr. Julian Keith and Linda Scherl of Hospice receive the proclamation from Mayor Wayne A. Corpening.

City Residents Asked To Join Hospice

Residents of the Winston-Salem area are being asked to join in helping Hospice of Winston-Salem and Forsyth County observe its second anniversary.

Hospice is the organization which provides an extended family for the terminally ill. It has served 114 patients since it started active work in Aug. of 1979.

Mayor Wayne A. Corpening has declared October as Hospice month in recognition of the organization's goals and what it has accomplished thus far.

The proclamation was presented to Dr. Julian Keith, president of Hospice; and Linda Scherl, Hospice care coordinator, by the mayor who commended the organization for its work.

Hospice is being highlighted on the Piedmont Show at noon on Station WXII (Channel 12) on Oct. 20. A reception is being held for those who have worked in Hospice on Sunday, Oct. 18.

Since it began work, Hospice has served 22 minority patient-families in the Winston-Salem area.

Special emphasis is being placed during the anniversary on increasing the number of volunteers.

A Hospice spokesman said the organization would like to have enough volunteers so that three could work with each patient-family. There is a special need for volunteers who can work during the day and for nurses who can serve on call at night and on weekends.

Hospice has about 80 volunteers with some 25 working directly with the patients and their families. It would like to increase both numbers.

The next training class is beginning Oct. 20 and will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays through Dec. 1. Information can be secured by calling the Hospice office at 768-3972.

Urban

commented Elijah.

The Urban League will operate most of the programs it has in the past, including the Displaced Homemakers -- a program to help women who have been out of the work force for an extended time. Programs encouraging handicapped being employment and women in non-traditional jobs are others which the league will sustain. The Carpentry Training program has been phased out while Elijah and his team, work on the construction of a senior citizens center to be located on Trade and 5th Streets.

The center is one of hope and pride said Elijah which he hopes will stimulate unity among all segments of the minority community.

"We hope that this center will not only be an outlet for senior citizens, but an outlet for the community as well."
