vote of four to three. The agreement that was reached in last week's meeting would combine $450,800 from community development funds with an offer of up to $500,000 from R. J. Reynolds to assist the Liberty-Patterson residents. This means that the residents would be eligible to receive up to $500 in moving expenses and up to $7,000 in home purchasing funds. Little also objected to a part of the agreement which states that after a resident has been shown two alternative houses or apartments and rejects them both, that resident may forfeit his eligibility for Reynolds funds.

Earlier last week, members of the Liberty-Patterson Neighborhood Coalition sent a letter to J. Paul Sticht, chief executive officer for Reynolds requesting that residents in Liberty-Patterson be given top priority for jobs at Reynolds that may become available in the future.

David Fishel, public relations director with Reynolds, said that the only reply that has been made to the letter as of yet was a decision to hold a meeting between Reynolds officials and residents of Liberty-Patterson to discuss the issue, sometime in the near future. Also during the meeting, the board voted to rezone and sell the Winston-Salem Branch of the YMCA approximately 11 acres of land for the construction of a new local YMCA building. The new site is to be located on Waterworks Road. The Patterson Avenue Branch of the YMCA will be closed because of the poor physical conditions of the building and industrial expansion that is taking place in the Liberty-Patterson neighborhood.

important goals of a journalist are accuracy and fairness.

"The chief responsibility of a journalist in general is to report the news as fairly and accurately as possible. You're seldom going to be perfect," he said, "but it's important to try." Johnson said.

But Johnson feels that black journalists have an added responsibility. Specifically, to do the same, but to make sure the side of the black community is heard and to report both the positive and the negative sides of black people for a positive result," Johnson elaborated.

As managing editor, Johnson will do some writing, but is primarily responsible for supervising the operation of the newsroom and laying out the paper.

Needs Of Crime Victims To Be Aired

"Problems, Treatment, and Compensation of Victims of Crime" will be the subject of a new study by the League of Women Voters in a meeting to be co-sponsored by the Phoenix Organization, on Thursday, Nov. 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Glade Street YWCA. Gordon Smith III, executive director of the Office of the Governor's Crime Commission, will speak on the topic.

While over thirty states have a program of financial compensation for victims of crime, North Carolina has one limited program in its new Rape Victim Assistance Program, operated through the Governor's Crime Commission and funded through legislative appropriations effective July, 1981.

This first meeting initiates a study in which the League of Women Voters throughout the state will examine operating victim compensation programs. The features of the new state Rape Victim Assistance law, the problem of witnesses and the possibilities of and non-offenders," Beaty said. "I'd like to talk with them and maybe prevent them from becoming criminals. I think I could give them some insight into the law and how it affects them."

Beaty feels that plea-bargaining is an accepted part of court procedure but he added that he would consider each case on its own merits.

"It would depend on a particular case. As a defense attorney I know that it is something that takes place and as a judge I would consider the offense and the defendant on individual merits," he explained.

The term of a special Superior Court judge is four years as opposed to the eight-year term of an elected resident judge. Beaty said that he is hopeful for re-appointment after his term is over. He also feels that his most important duty toward black people is being fair.

"I would hope that black people feel that they will get a fair shake in my court. Not saying that punishment and sentencing will be determined by this, but that it will be a fair judgment," Beaty said.

On the subject of capital punishment, Beaty said, "I would have to follow the laws as they are written and not necessarily make laws."

With the addition of Beaty to the bench, 11 black judges in the state include one court of appeals judge, three Superior Court judges, and seven District Court judges.

He also expressed concern for the plight of today's youth and said that he will use his new post to reach as many young people as he possibly can.

"I'm interested in youth, both offenders throughout the state wherever he is needed.

"I think that my main responsibility is to make sure that people who come into my court are treated fairly and no one loses any large amount of time unnecessarily," said Beaty during an interview at his law office.

Crimestoppers Hunt Suspect

Winston-Salem/Forsyth County Crime Stoppers needs your help to solve a case of armed robbery, kidnapping, and rape that occurred in Winston-Salem on October 20.

On that Tuesday afternoon, about 5 o'clock, a man entered Pud's Produce, a grocery store at 4410 S. Main Street. He asked the sales clerk, the only other occupant of the store, if she sold clothes lines. The clerk said the store did not. The man then left, but a short time later, re-entered the business. He pulled a blue-steel revolver with a long barrel and demanded money.

The man took the money and tore the receiver from the telephone. He grabbed the clerk by her hair and forced her to leave the store and get into his vehicle. They went to the 52 Package Store on South Main Street, where the man forced the woman, in fear of her life, to stay in the car while he pumped gas. They also stopped in the parking lot of the Frosty Mug, a bar on S. Main Street, where the man said he would let the woman out. But he changed his mind and drove instead to Jones Road.

There, the man forced the woman out of the vehicle and told her to walk down into the woods where the rape occurred. He then released her and she ran to a nearby house to call the police.

The victim gave the following description of the suspect: a white male, about 25 years old, 6 feet to 6-2, 160 pounds, brown eyes, short brown hair, not covering the ears, a smooth complexion and no facial hair.
