

Delta Fine Arts Center Sponsors Holmes

Marymal Holmes, soprano, was artist-in-residence at the Delta Arts Center during the week of May 3-7. Ms. Holmes, a graduate from North Carolina School of the Arts, is a member of the Washington Opera Company, the Paul Hill Chorale and a performing member of the Friday Morning Music Club of Washington, D.C. Following a concert appearance at Kenneth R. Williams auditorium for the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Jabberwock, Ms. Holmes led a lecture demonstration to local high school students at the Delta Arts Center.

Reynolds, Atkins, Carver, and Kennedy high schools participated in the master class led by Ms. Holmes. Her lecture demonstration focused on vocal music of Afro-American composers and students were introduced to black composers such as Hall Johnson, H.T. Burleigh and R. Nathaniel Dett, renowned for their spiritual music, and famed composers of art songs, John W. Work and William Grant Still. In addition, Ms. Holmes sang for the students and used recordings to demonstrate the varieties of music and vocal techniques. Each high school chorus sang a song in Ms. Holmes' master class, promoting the opportunity for the artist in residence to help each group with the music they were working on and for evaluation. Marymal Holmes also held the lecture-demonstration with music students at Winston-Salem State University.

Chronicle Welcomes Intern

LaTanya Arnette Isley

member of the Political Science Club, Student Congress and Student Government Association.

"I consider myself lucky to be working with the Chronicle as a summer intern," Isley says, "because it is one of the most attractively laid-out newspapers in the state of North Carolina and it will give me a chance to gain valuable experience."

Isley's long-range goal is to work for Ebony magazine as an editor.

Southern Bell Telephone Co. operators and Rose Winfrey (left) and Joyce Hicks (right), who were chosen as "Ideal Operators" by their fellow employees, watch as Winston-Salem Mayor Wayne Corpening signs a proclamation designating the week of May 9 through May 15 as "Operator Appreciation Week." They will be honored at special occasions planned during the week-long observance.

Clarence Richardson is this week's Bachelor of the Week. Richardson, 26, is a Gemini and an employee of the Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) Board. His favorite people are his mother Mary, his son Curt, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Stokely Carmichael. Richardson's hobbies are cooking, arts and crafts, sight-seeing and he enjoys most sports. His goals are to start his own business and to reach the management level within the company. (Photo by Santana)

Black Repertory Guild Travels To New York

By Floria Oates

The North Carolina Black Repertory Company Theatre Guild held a reception at the T.F. Lounge on Sunday, May 2 at 6 p.m. Guild board member Lucille Ramsey spoke about the trip to New York which 32 guild members took the weekend of April 23. The travelers stayed at the new Vista International Hotel in New York, went on a shopping spree, and had a champagne Sunday brunch at the hotel. The highlight of their trip was seeing the Broadway show, "Lena," starring

Lena Horne. Founder of the NCBRC, Larry Hamlin, told guild members that there will be a recruitment drive called "Project 1,000" designed to increase the membership of the guild to 1,000. He stressed the necessity and importance of everyone participating in the project. Hamlin also spoke of the new reader's theatre that the NCBRC is sponsoring. It will be designed to make guild members familiar with many black playwrights and their works, and also give local actors a chance to develop and display their talent. Reader's theatre is open to all guild members. Those who attended the reception were entertained with a reader's theatre performance of the entire script of "Day of Absence," a satirical comedy by Douglass Turner Ward, about what happens to a town when all of the black people disappear. The cast of characters included Ron Campbell, Paul Matthews, Wilson Thomas, Vanessa Powell, Janice Ramadan and Hamlin. Reader's theatre will become a regular feature of the NCBRC. A social hour followed the performance.
