The Readers Impressed: One With Reservations

To The Editor:

I recently had a chance to read your publication Black College Sports Review. I was very impressed with the quality of appearance and writing.

As a graduate of A&T State University and a long-time follower of black college sports, I have always felt there was a need for a publication such as yours.

I was particularly impressed with the stories done by Mr. Hill. He did a fine job on the CIAA championship game. None of the stories in the dailies in this area did as good a job as he did. I did not get a chance to go to the game personally, but his story made me feel as if I was there.

I also enjoyed the story on UDC. I had no idea they are a black school and I did not know they had that much talent.

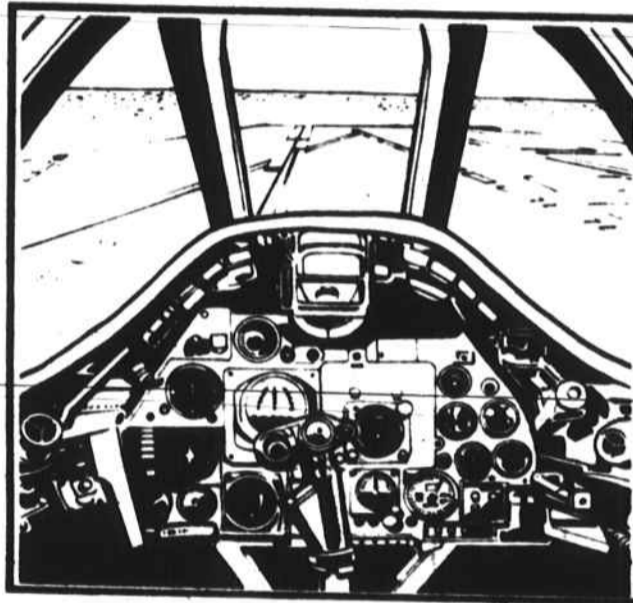

In this area, all we get is the ACC. It is about time someone started giving the black college coaches and athletes some proper coverage. I applaud you in your efforts and I look forward to coming issues.

This Desk Can Reach Mach 2.

Some desk jobs are more exciting than others.

As a Navy pilot or flight officer, your desk can be a sophisticated combination of supersonic jet aircraft and advanced electronic equipment. But you can handle it. Because Navy flight training gives you the navigation, aerodynamics and other technical know-how you need.

In return, Navy aviation demands something of you as an officer: Leadership.

Your path to leadership starts with officer training that's among the most demanding in the military. It's intensive leadership and professional schooling combined with rigorous Navy flight training. And it's all geared to prepare you and other college graduates for the unique challenge of Navy aviation. The program is tough but rewarding.

One important reward for Navy officers is decision-making authority. In the air, and on the ground, you have management responsibility from the beginning. And your responsibility grows as you gain experience.

No company can give you this kind of leadership responsibility this fast. And nothing beats the sheer excitement of Navy flying.

The salary is exciting, too. Right away, you'll earn about $18,300 a year. That's better than the average corporation will pay you just out of college. And with regular Navy promotions and other pay increases, your annual salary will soar to $31,000 after four years. That's on top of a full package of benefits and privileges.

Before you settle down to an earth-bound desk job, reach for the sky. Reach for the coupon. Find out what it takes to be part of the Naval Aviation Team. You could have a desk that flies at twice the speed of sound.
