Groups Rally Against Proposal

Proposition 48 will be enforced. The major problem, most black educators say, is the rule requiring the 700 SAT score or the equivalent on the American College Test (ACT). The educators, such as Southern University's Jesse Stone, call the tests culturally biased and racist.

The board of directors of the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education (NAFEO) even says that the tests violate the rights of minorities, including those from rural areas, and blacks, Hispanics and poor whites.

The board figures that since well-to-do middle-class whites design the tests, the poor and members of minorities are often at a disadvantage when taking them.

Iowa football coach Hayden Fry, who is white, is one of a growing number of people who say the test scores should be eliminated from Proposition 48.

"Who is so holy and powerful that they can reach the magic numbers of 700 on the SAT and 15 on the ACT?" asks Fry.

Says Grambling's Eddie Robinson: "I would not be comfortable if a kid could not play because he didn't pass those tests."

Robinson added that he felt that athletes should be treated like all other students. For example, he said, if a kid who plays in the band should not have to abide by Proposition 48, then why should a football player?

The NAFEO would like an answer to that, too. That is one reason the group is quickly gathering for a run at Proposition 48.

In a meeting of the NAFEO's board Feb. 2, it was declared that the organization, among other things, would:

- Reaffirm the commitment of black colleges and universities to excellence and quality.
- Condemn the misuse of standardized tests and the

Smokers Finish Third In South

By ROBERT ELLER
Sports Editor

The Triad Smokers' dream of a National Wheelchair Basketball Association championship came to an end last weekend in Dallas, Texas, when the top-seeded and hometown Dallas Mavericks took advantage of the Smokers' foul trouble and poor free throw shooting for a 66-56 win. The Smokers had advanced to the semifinals by beating the 12th-ranked North Florida Renegades 64-50 in first-round action as Elmer Clayton, Gary Hooks and Otis Thompson tossed in 21, 16 and 14 points, respectively. The three also combined for 28 rebounds, and Hooks held 6-8 Bill Richardson to 13 points.

Assistant Coach Jim Beck called the Smokers' defensive effort against Richardson and fellow all-American Johnny Johnson, who was held to 12 points by Clayton, the team's best defensive effort of the season.

The Renegades entered the game averaging better than 70 points per contest with Richardson averaging more than 21 points and 15 rebounds and Johnson chipping in 16.5 points a game.

The Smokers also out-rebounded North Florida 38-20 (Richardson got only eight rebounds) and Triad's fullcourt press forced 17 turnovers.

The Smokers never trailed after grabbing a 12-10 lead seven minutes into the game and led 38-21 at the half. Only poor Smoker free-throw shooting in the final five minutes allowed the Renegades to close to within the final margin.

The poor free throw shooting came back to haunt the Smokers the following afternoon against the Dallas Mavericks. The Mavericks entered the event as the top seed and brought a 34-0 record and a number-four ranking into the tourney.

Triad grabbed leads of 2-0, 4-2 and 8-6 before the Mavericks took the lead for good five minutes into the game.

Clayton picked up his third personal foul eight minutes into the game and, with him on the bench, Please see page 17

Fishing

Now's A Good Time To Fish

By GEORGE BOOIE
Chronicle Columnist

Some of the best fishing can be experienced during the next 60 days, or the earliest of the spring season. Taking advantage of these warm days just might assure you of a trophy fish.

The large crappies are moving around and beginning to school. White bass will be moving upstream to spawn. And largemouth bass will be pairing off, looking for the best spots for fanning out a bed.

And, believe it or not, this is ideal weather for catching lunker bass, too. If you are still having trouble getting down to High Rock and Badin lakes, you just might find that Salem Lake and the Old Winston Lake will provide some good fishing if you have the patience.

Last season, George Moore went fishing at Winston Lake and caught some fine bass, nothing under four pounds. In spite of what is said about Winston Lake, there is still some good fishing to be had there.

Still, cutting back the shorelines would help a great deal as far as making more banks available, but it seems that the city has given up on cleaning up the banks.

There are numerous elderly fishermen who cannot go anyplace other than Winston Lake for a day of fishing. Maybe if enough citizens appeal to the city fathers, the shorelines of the lake could be made more accessible.

An appeal is as simple as picking up your telephone and making a call. I have been told that the reason East Winston does not get specific things done is because the black citizens never ask for those needed improvements. Complacency is not being satisfied; it is really not giving a darn.

ANSWER: Sugar Ray Robinson.

CAN YOU AFFORD TO LOSE $55,700?

Just one year's delay in opening a tax-deductible Individual Retirement Account (IRA) at Northwestern would cost you approximately $55,700 at retirement. This is assuming a $1,000 deposit is made each year on the same date over a 34 year period instead of a 35 year period, based on 12% annual interest compounded quarterly. (This is a hypothetical rate which Northwestern Bank cannot guarantee, and your actual earnings may vary.)

Even if you're covered by a retirement plan where you work, you can make a tax-deductible contribution of up to $2,000 each year in an IRA. See your Northwestern Banker for details.

To open your account, visit your nearby Northwestern office.
