

On Strike

These strikers walked the picket line in front of the Western Electric plant on Old Lexington Road recently. Represented by the Communication Workers of America, the workers walked off the job one minute after midnight Saturday when the union failed to reach contract agreements for higher wages and cost-of-living raises (photo by James Parker).

Black Journalist Directory Planned

NABJ. Johnson, 32, is a former city editor of the Gary (Ind.) Post-Tribune.

About two years ago, NABJ circulated forms for a directory of its own to be compiled manually. However, the effort failed. Dr. Pride and Johnson are using a personal computer to compile and sort the information.

The publication will have four parts. The first will be an assessment by Dr. Pride and Johnson of the state of blacks in the media. The second will be a census that lists the total number of black journalists as well as the breakdowns for job classifications such as reporters, editors, and executives. There will also be a section on the black press.

The third part will be an alphabetical listing of all black journalists. It will include biographical and career information.

Data for the directory and census will be compiled in three stages. In the first stage, now under way, mailing lists will be assembled to identify and contact black journalists. In the second stage, the computer will be used to eliminate duplications from the many mailing lists. All of those on the master mailing list will be asked to complete information forms, now available. The final stage involves verification of information and publication.

Dr. Pride and Johnson are financing the project but plan to seek assistance from media outlets, organizations and foundations as well as individuals.

For additional information, or to submit black journalist mailing lists, write: Who's What and Where, P.O. Box 921, Detroit, Mich. 48231. Interested persons may also write to reserve advance copies of the publication.

ballhandling skills. If he continues to improve and maintains his grade-point average, he is going to be a fine player."

Howard, a 6-5 sophomore, was his usual quiet and steady self, averaging 11 points and 12 rebounds for both games. His defense, particularly his shot-blocking, proved to be a key in the victories.

"That kid Number 5 (Howard) is going to be some kind of player," said Shorter, who has coached and seen many good ones through the years. "You just watch the savvy and presence he has on the court and you know he's going to be special."

During the past eight weeks, the Hawks have traveled more than 2,000 miles and have played more than 30 basketball games against teams from six different states. Joynes said it is all part of the plan to help local players develop while at the same time giving them national exposure.

"This whole experience helps them improve their individual skills by competing against some of the top players," said Joynes. "If they had not participated, chances are their games would not have improved that much. There are certain things you can do in the gym or on the playground that will help you improve, but to actually use them against other players really makes you a better player.

"The other thing is that they have gotten an opportunity to play before scouts and recruiters from several colleges who will in turn tell other scouts and recruiters. That increases their visibility and their chances for scholarships."

Joynes said the Hawks plan to invite out-of-town teams to play here in the future in addition to traveling to other cities.

Indians Eliminated From Tourney

by second baseman Tito Manuel.

Trailing 5-2, the Indians battled back for two runs in the seventh as Rod Johnson's single knocked in Curt Gibson and Mike Smith, who had also singled.

Miami sent Peterson to the showers in its half of the seventh with two more runs, and only a superb relief performance by Mike Featherstone, who struck out four in his two-inning stint, averted more damage.

Still, the Indians had a chance to tie the score in the ninth against Vasquez. After Teska Dillard popped out, Gibson drew a walk, Smith singled and Johnson walked to load the bases. Otis Foster then hit a bullet up the middle that looked like a two-run single, but Manuel dived for the shot, gloved it, regained his feet, stepped on second and threw to first to end the game.

"I thought we had a chance with Otis (Foster), our leading hitter at the plate. And when he hit it up the middle, I knew two runs would score, but Manuel made as fine a play on the ball as any major leaguer I've ever seen," said Wilkins.

Wilkins' team saw its dream die the following day as Milwaukee pitched a no-hitter against the Indians.

Behind seven innings of work by Oregon all-American Keith Faust, and two innings of hitless relief by his replacement, the Wisconsin team won a 4-0 decision.

Larry Jackson started for the Indians and allowed only six hits. He gave up two unearned runs in the first on a double and two errors, and another in the third on two more errors and a single.

Milwaukee got its earned runs in the seventh on a solo homer and in the eighth on two walks and a single.

"Playing against so many college all-Americans, and players like ex-major leaguer Bobby Bonds' son, seeing all the scouts and playing on artificial turf for the first time was a little too much for us," admitted Wilkins. "But we expect to be back next year with a year of experience under our belts. Now we know what to expect."
