The games are quick and much psychological warfare goes on.

"This is hard work; it's just not my day," says Mrs. Joyner, hoping her rival bites the bait.

"I just get tired of beating some people all the time," says Mrs. Lester.

With concern for health and exercise reaching epidemic proportions, having some fresh fruit and vegetables and other "natural" dishes on hand for guests will prevent turned-up noses and lengthy discussions of cholesterol.

Make the most of what you've got, particularly when entertaining out-of-town guests. If your area is known for a particular food or style of cooking, buy some from a local specialty shop or restaurant, or make it yourself. Local foods or wines also make nice gifts to give to departing guests, or to bring to a host when it's your turn to be the guest.

"Always be on the lookout for an unusual idea," Holder says. "Borrow or steal from friends, newspaper articles, magazine ads, accounts of celebrities' parties. And keep in mind that next time it will be somebody else's turn to throw the party."

he can. In the 1950s, as the big bands were giving way to rock-and-roll, Basie was beginning to become an institution in American music. And to galvanize that achievement, in May, the National Endowment of the Arts awarded Basie one of three Master Jazz Awards and cited him as an "American Institution, who, for 50 years, has brought his own brand of big band swing to the forefront of jazz."

Advance tickets are $12.50 and may be purchased at The Arts Line, Reznicks, the Record Bar at Hanes Mall, the Record Boutique, Peaches in Greensboro and Marty's in High Point. Gate admission will be $15. For more information, call the Arts Line at 723-1666.

in "Krull" is hardly known, for the film is totally misguided, if guided at all.

Perhaps something better can be hoped for in a sequel, which is likely, since no real conclusions end the film. And Prince Colwyn better not get too comfortable because, as any wise prince ought to know, few omnipotent monsters take defeat lying down.

Beyond all the good-natured bantering and needling, there is a special camaraderie among the members. "We've developed a real closeness in this group," says Mrs. Joyner. "We kid each other and all, but we are concerned about each other's family and how things are going with them outside our gathering."
