Shaw University Awarded $5,000 Grant

Shaw University was recently awarded a $5,000 grant from the United Negro College Fund's Louis J. Calder Premedical Education Program.

The money will assist Shaw University in a project that will start computerized science instruction in its premedical program. According to the grant proposal, drafted by Dr. R.K. De, the estimated cost of the initial effort is $8,852.15.

The goal of the premedical program is to "enhance the ability of qualified minority students in gaining admission to and completing programs at other professional schools," said De. "Shaw's premedical program will reduce the health manpower shortage and increase the quality and quantity of health care for all Americans."

Shaw's main focus will be on increasing the number of individuals from disadvantaged backgrounds in the health field. The UNCF grant will assist the university in meeting its immediate objective of emphasizing the tutorial section of the program by offering computerized instruction programs in biology, chemistry and physics through workshops and seminars.

In other Shaw University news, Dr. Stanley H. Smith, president of Shaw

University, urged the alumni to continue their support of the university during the annual alumni banquet.

Dr. Smith pointed to the growing underclass in urban and rural areas of the country as proof of the need for schools such as Shaw.

"We can no longer look to public higher education institutions," for answers he told the alumni at the banquet.

"You are an example of what Shaw stands for.

Many of you wouldn't have been accepted at other schools ... but Shaw did (accept you) ... and you were able to hold your own."

Reminding the audience that education is an expensive business, Smith asked the alumni to provide both financial support and support at alumni meeting.

In a special presentation, awards were presented to Mrs. Gloria K. Smith, Mrs. Elaine Williams and Dr. Dorothy M. Haith.
