Bond kicks off UNC-G's Black History Month

Julian Bond, a Georgia state senator and a nationally known black leader, kicked off the campus wide observance of Black History Month at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro on Tuesday, Jan. 31.

In addition to the Bond lecture, several other concerts, lectures and dramatic performances are planned to highlight the month. The programs were organized by the UNC-G Student Government Association and the Neo-Black Society, a UNC-G student organization.

On Feb. 1, Dr. Loren Schweniger, UNC-G associate professor of history, lectured on "Historians and Afro-American History."

On Feb. 3 and 4, Jazz hour will be held in Benbow Lounge of the Elliott University Center at 8 p.m., with performances by the Neo-Black Society Dance and Drama Troupe in Aycock Auditorium.

On Feb. 5 at 3 p.m., the Neo-Black Society Choir will be in concert in Aycock Auditorium.

On Feb. 6 at 8:15 p.m., the drama "For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide When the Rainbow is Enuf" will be presented in Aycock Auditorium. Admission will be charged.

On Feb. 7 at 8:15 p.m., historian Dr. Robert Hill of UCLA will lecture on "Search for a Black Hero, Marcus Garvey" in Claxton Lounge of Elliott University Center.

On Feb. 8 at 7:30 p.m., an address by Dr. Elizabeth Carnegie, visiting distinguished professor of nursing at UNC-G, will be held in Room 130 of the UNC-G School of Nursing.

And on Feb. 9 at 3:45 p.m., Dr. Linda Bragg, a faculty member in the UNC-G's residential college, will lecture on "Minorities in American Literature" in the Alumni House.

Proctor speaks at A&T

An address by Dr. Samuel D. Proctor, senior minister of Abyssinian Baptist Church and a former president of North Carolina A&T State University, will highlight the Black History Month activities at A&T.

Proctor will speak in Harrison Auditorium on Wednesday, Feb. 8, at 6:30 p.m. Other black history month activities will include a poetry reading by Dr. Linda Bragg on Feb. 12 at 6 p.m. in the Memorial Union Ballroom, a community forum on "Prespectives on Blacks in Politics" on Feb. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in 123 Gibbs Hall and a dance concert by Paula Larke on Feb. 22 at 2 p.m. in the F.D. Bluford Library.

The Richard B. Harrison Players will present "A Land Beyond the River" Feb. 18-21 at 8:15 p.m. in the Paul Robeson Theatre.

Other activities for this week are as follows:

•Feb. 7, seminar, "Experience In Politics," 3 p.m. in the F.D. Bluford Library.

•Feb. 9, lecture, "Wings Over Jordan," by Dr. Samuel Barber, at 7:30 p.m. in 123 Gibbs Hall.
