Wheelchair is just an object From Page A7

them because they're handicapped."

Being confined to a wheelchair has not confined Settle's attempt to make life easier on herself. She travels often to her hometown to visit her grandmother, who she says has been her greatest inspiration.

"When I go home," she says, "I'll be sitting in my car waiting for somebody to get my chair out and they'll say, 'Girl, what's wrong with you? You think you're handicapped or something?'"

"Sometimes I think my family forgets I am," says Settle.

Because she is a recipient of disability payments, Settle is not eligible to work, but she has goals to achieve and hopes to reach the independence of supporting herself financially one day.

"I'd like to own my own crafts shop one day right here in Winston," she says, "and I want to buy an old house like the ones up there on the corner, with the shop inside."

"But then again," she says, pausing for just a moment to hear the latest development on one of her favorite soap operas, "I would love to be a psychiatrist."

"I'm an armchair psychiatrist now. That's why I never get to dwell on my own problems," she says. "I can see it now -- another Dr. Joyce Brothers."
