That itch!

Your skin is the largest organ of your body. And, like the others, it is subject to a variety of ills. In most cases these conditions are minor, and some of the more common problems are itching and irritation.

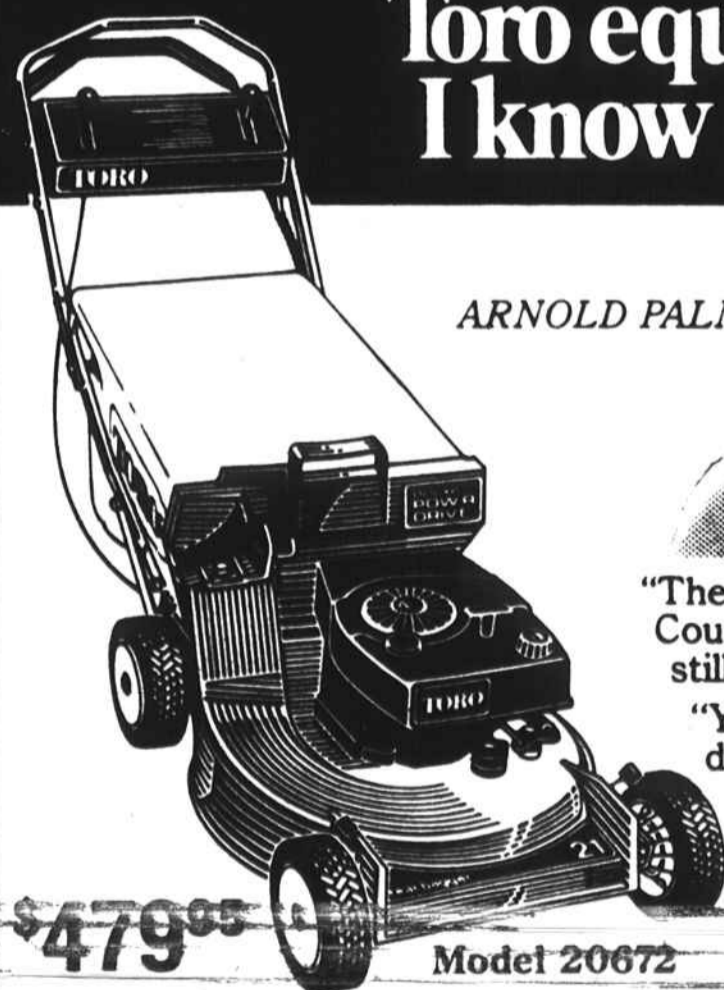

But there's nothing minor about the discomfort they can cause. Anyone suffering poison ivy, the bite of an insect or allergy rashes wants just one thing: safe, immediate relief.

Now consumers can purchase a more effective remedy for minor skin irritations than has ever been available before without a prescription.

The new Dermolate products are based on the active ingredient hydrocortisone, which up until now was available only with a doctor's prescription. Hydrocortisone at low concentrations has recently been approved for non-prescription sale, making it possible for pharmacists to recommend it for the treatment of skin conditions which have previously been treated with less effective preparations.

Dermolate provides symptomatic relief of minor skin irritations and itching due to eczema or dermatitis, including itchy anal and scalp areas; allergic rashes such as poison oak, poison ivy and poison sumac; and rashes due to soaps, detergents, cosmetics and jewelry.

It is the only non-prescription hydrocortisone available in four formulations for distinct skin areas. These formulations—cream, spray, lotion and ointment—are designed for convenient application on the skin area involved.
