

Chronicle to help local scouts

By AUDREY L. WILLIAMS
Chronicle Staff Writer

In an effort to send Boy Scouts to camp this summer and boost circulation sales, Michael Pitt, Chronicle circulation manager, has launched a campership campaign to send local scouts to Raven Knob Summer Camp in Mt. Airy.

In a letter to parents, ministers and scout masters, Pitt solicited participation and support to help make the campaign a success. Commissions for each subscription sold by a Scout or every renewal will be forwarded to the campership campaign for the scout's troop.

The campaign, which began June 7, will continue through 5 p.m. June 25. Pitt says in order for a troop to receive credit for selling a subscription, a coupon must be filled out and returned to the Chronicle.

"It's a good idea for the Chronicle to work with an organization such as the Scouts," says Pitt, "because they're going to be our leaders of tomorrow."

"Going to camp is probably one of the most important aspects of being a Scout," he says, "and Raven Knob is 3,600 beautiful acres of pure camping paradise."

Troop 818 Scout Master Marshall McDuffie agrees that sending a Scout to camp can make all the difference in the world to a young boy who needs motivation.

His troop meets at Zion Hill Baptist Church and the 36 scouts in 818 were one of the first of the six to join in the campership campaign.

"Right now this is one of the most exciting things going on in East Winston," says McDuffie. "This is a chance for the Scouts to help a black business and a chance for them to help themselves."

McDuffie, who has been taking Scouts to Raven Knob for several years now, says attending the week-long session not only blossoms a young Scout's motivation, but teaches him the basics in survival, manhood and brotherhood.

At least eight Scouts in Troop 818 have already been to Raven Knob and serve as an inspiration to the other scouts who have hopes of attending this year, he says.

The land for the camp is owned by the Old Hickory Boy Scout Council and a number of trained staff people supervise the camp, where the Scouts learn first aid, cooking, canoeing, boating, swimming, safety and much more.

"What these boys learn in one week at Raven Knob, the average Boy Scout can't learn in one year," says McDuffie. "It also gives them a chance to earn six merit badges."

"I would like to see more black scouts go there," he says, "and if I can take all my Scouts up there, it would mean a lot to me."

Other troops and scout masters participating in the campership campaign are Troop 801 of St. Paul United Methodist Church, Robert McCollough, scout master; Troop 811, Piedmont Park Recreation Center, the Rev. Mack McConell, scout master; Troop 869, Mt. Zion Baptist Church, Lonzo Funchess, scout master; Troop 857, Kimberly Park Recreation Center, Coal Keaton, scout master and Troop 868 of First Baptist Church, Sheddick Adams, scout master.

Pitt also says members of the Baptist Ministers Conference have also pooled support for the campership campaign.

"Sending a Boy Scout to camp is a worthwhile cause," he says, "and we're going to give the Scouts all the support we can."

Correction

Due to incorrect information submitted to the Chronicle, a May 24 obituary and headline incorrectly listed Mrs. Mary B. Pearson as a member of Mars Hill Baptist Church.

Although she had been a Mars Hill member earlier, Mrs. Pearson belonged to Holy Ghost Miracle Fellowship Temple, which she joined in 1976, at the time of her death.

The Chronicle regrets the error.

Repertory to celebrate National Theatre Week

Winston-Salem's Black Repertory Company will observe National Theatre Week June 3-10.

Theatres across the country are offering performances and other activities to celebrate the week.

National Theatre Week is a means of providing recognition and appreciation to the many theatres serving the vast population of this country. Although Winston-Salem has over seven theatres performing throughout the year, several of which serve the black community, the North Carolina Black Repertory Company is the only theatre company in the city offering performances during the celebration of National Theatre Week.

The NCBRC will be presenting "An Unforgettable Evening With The North Carolina Black Repertory Company." The hilarious, back-breaking comedy "Old Judgemoose is Dead" by Joseph White plus scenes from "Emperor Jones," "Day of Absence," and "Sty of the Blind Pig" will fill the bill.

The performances will be presented June 8 and 9 at 8:15 p.m. and June 10 at 3:15 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. in the Mary Montcastle Forum at Winston Square at 226 N. Marshall St. Tickets are available at the Stevens Center-Box Office, 405 W. Fourth St., or the North Carolina Black Repertory Company office, 610 Coliseum Drive. Call 723-7907 for reservations.
