

The Boy Scouts from Troop No. 869, Mt. Zion Baptist Church, are sponsoring a fundraiser so they will be able to attend Camp Raven Knob July 22-28. The troop is participating in the Chronicle's Campership Campaign and will be canvassing local communities selling subscriptions to the Chronicle. A portion of every subscription sold by the Scouts will be donated to help pay the cost of attending camp. Without community support, many of these Scouts will not be able to attend camp. Help send a Scout to camp by mailing in subscriptions with a campership coupon and saying yes to a Scout when he calls or calling the circulation department at 722-8628 and renew or start a subscription. Remember, you can help send a Scout to camp. Subscribe today. Scouts pictured above are, front row, left to right, Kevin Hayes, Freddy Falls and Michael Talbert. Back row, Michael McConnell, Kenneth Woodruff, Lonzo Funches, Scout master, and Mario Falls.

Sibling rivalry

the countywide track meet.

It's evident that the Browns are proud of all three of their sons' artistic talents. Instead of store-bought paintings or other decorative items displayed on the living room walls, art work, mostly done by Anthony, dominates the decor. Some of his work also include character sketches of Michael Jackson and he's also tackling cartooning and crafts.

"Most of my work is based on things I see around me," says Anthony. "Mostly I draw and paint to express my feelings. Expression is what art really means, though."

"An artist interprets the way he sees things," he says. "It may be abstract, but it's all in what you see. I go off on detail."

Anthony fulfills his musical urges by playing the drums at his church, the Greater Faith Chapel Church of God in Christ, and says he's now learning to play the guitar.

He talks about making contributions to the world possibly through his art and fulfilling dreams. His mother, however, reminds him of one important element of all of his talents that he must never stray from.

"Always remember you owe everything that you have to God," she says.

He nods and acknowledges her advice, already knowing that he didn't create his talent. And despite the sibling rivalry as well as the competition Anthony will face as he becomes more advanced in his creativity, he offers this one point:

"I won't back down," says Anthony. "I won't back down for anybody. Nobody's going to spoil my talents."

Tucker

Because his oldest daughter wants to complete high school in Charlotte, Tucker still lives there, where he served as city executive of the branch bank for 22 years, and commutes to Winston-Salem.

"It's hard to pull up roots," he says. "I have been in Charlotte 22 years and established a home and friends there."

"When I came to the bank's opening here three years ago," Tucker says, "if anybody had told me that three or four years later I'd be in Winston, I would have been forced to call them a liar."

Determining fertilizer needs

The best way to determine fertilizer needs is to have a soil test made. If you have not had your soil tested, a general recommendation is to apply two to three pounds of 8-8-8 per 100 square feet. Work the fertilizer into the soil to a depth of six to eight inches.

Usually, chrysanthemums are spaced 24 inches apart. The exact distance depends upon the variety, since some varieties spread more than others. Set the plant shallow with just enough soil to prevent them from falling over.

When plants reach a height of six to eight inches, remove the top three-quarter inch off of each shoot. This will cause side branches to develop. When these side branches become four to five inches long, again remove the top three-quarter inch.

Vigorous varieties may need a third pinching. Most compact, cushion-type chrysanthemums may be pinched as late as July 15.

In addition to the fertilizer used prior to planting, two or three additional applications of fertilizer may be required. Apply two pounds of 8-8-8 per 100 square feet about June 30 and the same about August 15.

Actively growing chrysanthemums require much water. If summer droughts occur, apply at least one inch of water each week. Leaf diseases will be less troublesome if foliage is kept dry, especially during the night.

Mums are one of the best perennial plants for early fall bloom, say Agricultural Extension Service horticulturists at North Carolina State University. They come in many flower forms and colors.

Hardy chrysanthemums have many uses around the home. The taller varieties are excellent for cut flowers, while medium and short varieties make very nice pot plants for inside or for porches and terraces.

Most short or cushion mums are used in mass plantings or borders.

Mums may live for several years in one location
