

Jordan

Segers

Richardson

Chronicle Camera

Is court ruling fair?

By AUDREY L. WILLIAMS Chronicle Staff Writer

The Chronicle polled citizens and asked their opinion of the recent Supreme Court "last hired, first fired," ruling that will make it lawful for companies to layoff or fire employees who have the least amount of seniority, regardless of qualifications or color.

Pamela Reid, housewife: "It's fair. Seniority should count. Maybe it is knocking black people out of jobs, but I think it's fair."

Kristy Segers, high school student: "I don't think it's fair, but then again it is. But now it's law and you can't change that."

Brenda Granderson, information specialist: "In a sense I think it's fair. Now if you've been on a job 10 or 15 years and somebody else has been there 6 months, it's fair. Really I guess it depends on how the company handles it. Reynolds handled their layoff situation very poorly, even though those employees were the last hired."

Michael Richardson, press worker: "If a person is better capable of doing a job than the person that's been there the longest, then the best man should stay."

Flora Jordan, account analyst: "If your qualifications have met what they want, that's who should stay. I think there are many black people who are qualified. In a situation like that, there are two losses. The employer may lose a qualified worker and the employee is out of a job."

J.A. Floyd Sr., carpentry supervisor: "I worked at R.J. Reynolds twenty-four and a half years as a supervisor and I got fired, because I was hiring black people. You hire black people and you'll get fired."

Michael Ray, security guard: "Quite naturally blacks are the last hired. I think it will be unfair to ethnic groups because as a whole their just coming into the good jobs that white folks have had all along."

Bernard Lyons, resturaunt manager: "I think that it's correct to be fired in the order you were hired. It's fair."

Better Living

Freeze foods for summer

By JOANNE FALLS

Home Economics Extension Agent During summer months, it is always wise to keep some time saving frozen meals on hand to use in time pinching situations and when guests arrive unex-

Before huving frozen foods, plan what you will serve with the food to complete a balanced meal. Plan to cut down on waste by buying something that most people like and can eat. If you pack a lunch for work, buy foods that you can cook in advance and divide in portions for a supper meal at home and lunch at work from the leftovers.

Falls

Plan to keep raw, cut up fruit, vegetables or melon on hand in your refrigerator so you will always be prepared to serve a variety of foods and add color to your summer meals.

Consumers now have several Stouffer's Beef Teriyaki tasty choices of low-calorie frozen dinners in grocery stores today. These are some of the favorite frozen dinners picked by the experts of Glamour Magazine. All of these frozen dinners have less than 400 calories per serving, and they are ready to go from oven to table.

Seafood Dinners

Green Giant Stir Fry Shrimp Fried Rice

Stouffer's Lean Cuisme Filler of Fish Divon

Stouffer's Lobster Newburg Weight Watchers Sole In Lemon

Chicken

Green Giant Stir Fry Chicken With Garden Vegetables Green Giant Stir Fry Sweet and Sour Chicken Light and Elegant Glazed

Chicken Stouffer's Lean Cuisine Glazed Chicken

Beef

Armour Dinner Classics Sirloin

Green Giant Stir Fry Beef Teriyaki

Green Giant Stir Fry Szechuan Beef

Swanson Le Menu Beef Sirloin

Almost every week something different and tasty appears in the

Please see page B12

