Needy still find Home of Hope

By AUDREY L. WILLIAMS Chronicle Staff Writer

At 6:15 every morning, before Kay Bonner can even get inside, her work greets her at the gate.

Monday through Friday, she prepares breakfast for the jobless, homeless, drug abusers, alcoholics and others from every walk of life at the Home of Hope's new home on Northwest Boulevard.

luck, jobless and looking for something to do. But in March, the Rev. Moses Small, the Home of Hope's director, gave her a job.

"I started playing bingo and I needed a job," she says. "Reverend Small offered me a job. I been here ever since and I love it. People come in here hungry and I just love to see them eat.

"Sometimes I take money out of my own pocket to help feed the people," she says.

Small has been taking money out of his own pocket for over 16 years now to help others in need.

The Home of Hope is where Small has invested most of his money over the years. The structure on Cherry-Marshall Street that had been its home for a year is being razed to make room for a new and used car lot, he says.

Because he says he could never raise $60,000 at the end of the year to buy the building, which he leased with an option to buy, Small says he had to purchase the new home on Northwest Boulevard. Painted in a faint blue, the old service station which houses the program is much smaller than the Cherry-Marshall building and there is no room for the trades shop that featured handmade crafts. His main objective since moving from the old home in December is serving breakfast and helping wherever he can, Small says.

"It's still a service station," he says, looking in the direction where gas pumps once stood.

Small calls his new operation, "The Lord's Table," but the Home of Hope sign sits next to it and painted on the wall in black lettering is a verse from Matthew 25:35.

thirsty and ye gave me drink. I was a stranger and ye took me in.

Since its opening in December, Small says 10,000 persons have been fed as of two weeks ago. He has the notebooks with names signed and dated to prove it.

An average of 30 per day take advantage of the free breakfast, which begins at 7:30 a.m. The diners usually file out by 9 a.m. in search of a job or to go to one, says Small.

"I'm the only person in the world that can't go broke," says the always optimistic, but physically ailing Small, "It's impossible for me to go broke."

ailing Small. "It's impossible for me to go broke."
Small, who receives no government funding for his handouts, depends solely on his faith in God, he says. "He (God) is rich and so am I," he says.

one day, Bonner was waiting for him. There was another woman waiting to see him, one who needed her rent paid or would be evicted. Small agreed to give her the money.

The bingo parlor in the Parkview Shopping Center, where Bonner first met Small, owner of the business, is a financial venture which he says has both its ups and downs.

However, the Home of Hope may just have another new home if all goes well for the freehearted Small. He has his sights set on purchasing a vacant building on 17th Street and Ivy Avenue. The selling price, he says, is $100,000.

Small says he'd like to use the building to open up a kindergarten, house the homeless, continue his free breakfast program and restore the trades program.

But most important to Small, feeding the hungry is a top priority
