Ebony Fashion Fair

From Page A6

Oct. 28 at the Women's Club on Fourth St.

Contestants have been making reports of ticket sales before each meeting. The culmination of all their excitement and hard work will come to an end on the night of the pageant, when the contestant who has raised the most money will be crowned Mr. or Miss Ebony Fashion on stage at the Ebony Fashion Fair. That contestant, along with the two runner-ups, will receive a scholarship.

All proceeds of ticket sales will go to the Urban League Guild Scholarship Fund and the Urban League Building Fund.

Thomas Elijah, president of the Urban League, said, "I'm proud to have the opportunity to work with such a group of bright and talented young people."

This year, the Ebony Fashion Fair will be held Nov. 2 at the Benton Convention Center. Persons interested in purchasing tickets should call the Urban League office at 725-5614 for more information.

The off-price experience is coming.

You're going to discover a whole new way of shopping... buying brand name merchandise at sensible prices.

More than just another shopping center, The Marketplace will have over 40 stores offering savings from 20-60 percent over full price. And just because you're paying less doesn't mean you're getting less. Our shops will offer top-quality goods for the whole family in a beautiful, enclosed shopping mall.

Discover for yourself the off-price experience at stores like these:

The Children's Place: Brand-name and designer children's clothes, expensive in every way but the price.

The Rack Room: Famous brand shoes for the entire family in a huge selection of sizes and prices.

Hanes Mill Outlet: America's favorite brand names at 20-50 percent off. Save on underwear, socks, t-shirts, hosiery, lingerie and more.

Burlington Shoe: The prices are stacked in your favor with savings to 70 percent on brand name and designer shoes.
