Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. has proclaimed the week of Nov. 12-18 as "Honor Sunday School Teachers Week in North Carolina" and has urged that the thousands of teachers across the state be recognized and honored.

The governor's proclamation noted the selfless efforts of the teachers in their hours of preparation and commended them for providing "the moral and spiritual nourishment to sustain us in this troubled time."

"They spread the seed of comfort, compassion and confidence in the future," the proclamation stated. The text of the proclamation is as follows:

"Whereas, thousands of Sunday School teachers in North Carolina and throughout the Country serve in a selfless manner to promote the good in our everyday lives; and Whereas, the lessons learned in Sunday School classes provide the moral and spiritual nourishment to sustain us in this troubled time, and spread the seed of comfort, compassion, and confidence in the future; and Whereas, Sunday School teachers devote many hours of their time in preparation to teach without pay some of the great lessons of things spiritual; and Whereas, it is fitting and appropriate that the efforts of Sunday School teachers be recognized and honored; Therefore, I proclaim the week of Nov. 12 through 18 'Honor Sunday School Teacher Week In North Carolina' and commend this observance to our citizens."

The governor's proclamation marks the 17th straight year that "Honor Sunday School Teachers Week" has been proclaimed by the state's chief executive. Former Gov. Dan Moore began the practice during his second year in office.

North Carolina was the first state to begin an observance to honor its teachers in church schools and Sunday schools. Several other states have since begun similar observances.
