

Chronicle All-City/County offense

was one of the county's top receivers. Other Mustangs on the offensive team are Mark Crater, a massive lineman, and Clay Bryan, another down lineman for Parkland.

Seniors Walter Mack, Maurice Hymes, Ben Hill and Melvin Palmer round out the North contingent on the offensive unit. Hymes, a 6-4, 280-pounder, helped anchor a strong Viking offensive line with the 5-11, 247-pound Mack.

Geno Segers, a two-way performer for Perry Pearson's Eagles and a state 4-A wrestling champ last year, joined wide receiver Chris Christmas to give the Eagles two players on the squad.

North Forsyth placekicker Hill was by far the finest field goal kicker in the county this past season. He connected on a record 48-yard field goal against Hickory.

Palmer, a wide receiver, teamed with Hatchett to give the Vikings one of the top passing combinations in the county.

Gerald Moore, the only junior on the team, gave Glenn an offensive threat second to none. Moore had two games of more than 200 yards rushing during the season and scored four touchdowns in two consecutive games for the Bobcats, in their first year of high school competition.

The Year of the Sweater

Every year, one gift idea seems to dominate the thinking of clothing designers. 1984 is the year of the sweater. This year manufacturers have developed new and exciting ways of incorporating patterns into traditional styles. And they've done so using tremendous colors, with a blending of shades and tones that are truly unique.

Norman Stockton has sought out the finest in sweaters for Christmas 1984 — from lightweight cotton to four ply cashmere to ski weight wools. We've selected from sweaters offered by old line British knitters and from a number of new manufacturers who are remarkable stylist. Just listen to the names on our sweater roster: Alan Paine, Pendleton, Boston Trader, Findachty, Scotland yard, St. Cruix and Alexander Julian.
