

Norfolk and Union again will slug it out

By ROBERT ELLER
Special To The Review

VIRGINIA UNION'S supremacy in this league is beginning to border on the ridiculous.

Where else could you lose the best player in Division II and come back even stronger?

Meanwhile, Ralph Tally and Norfolk State hope to derail their Richmond neighbor. Given their closely matched talent, their meetings during the regular season and very probably the CIAA Tournament should be sights to behold.

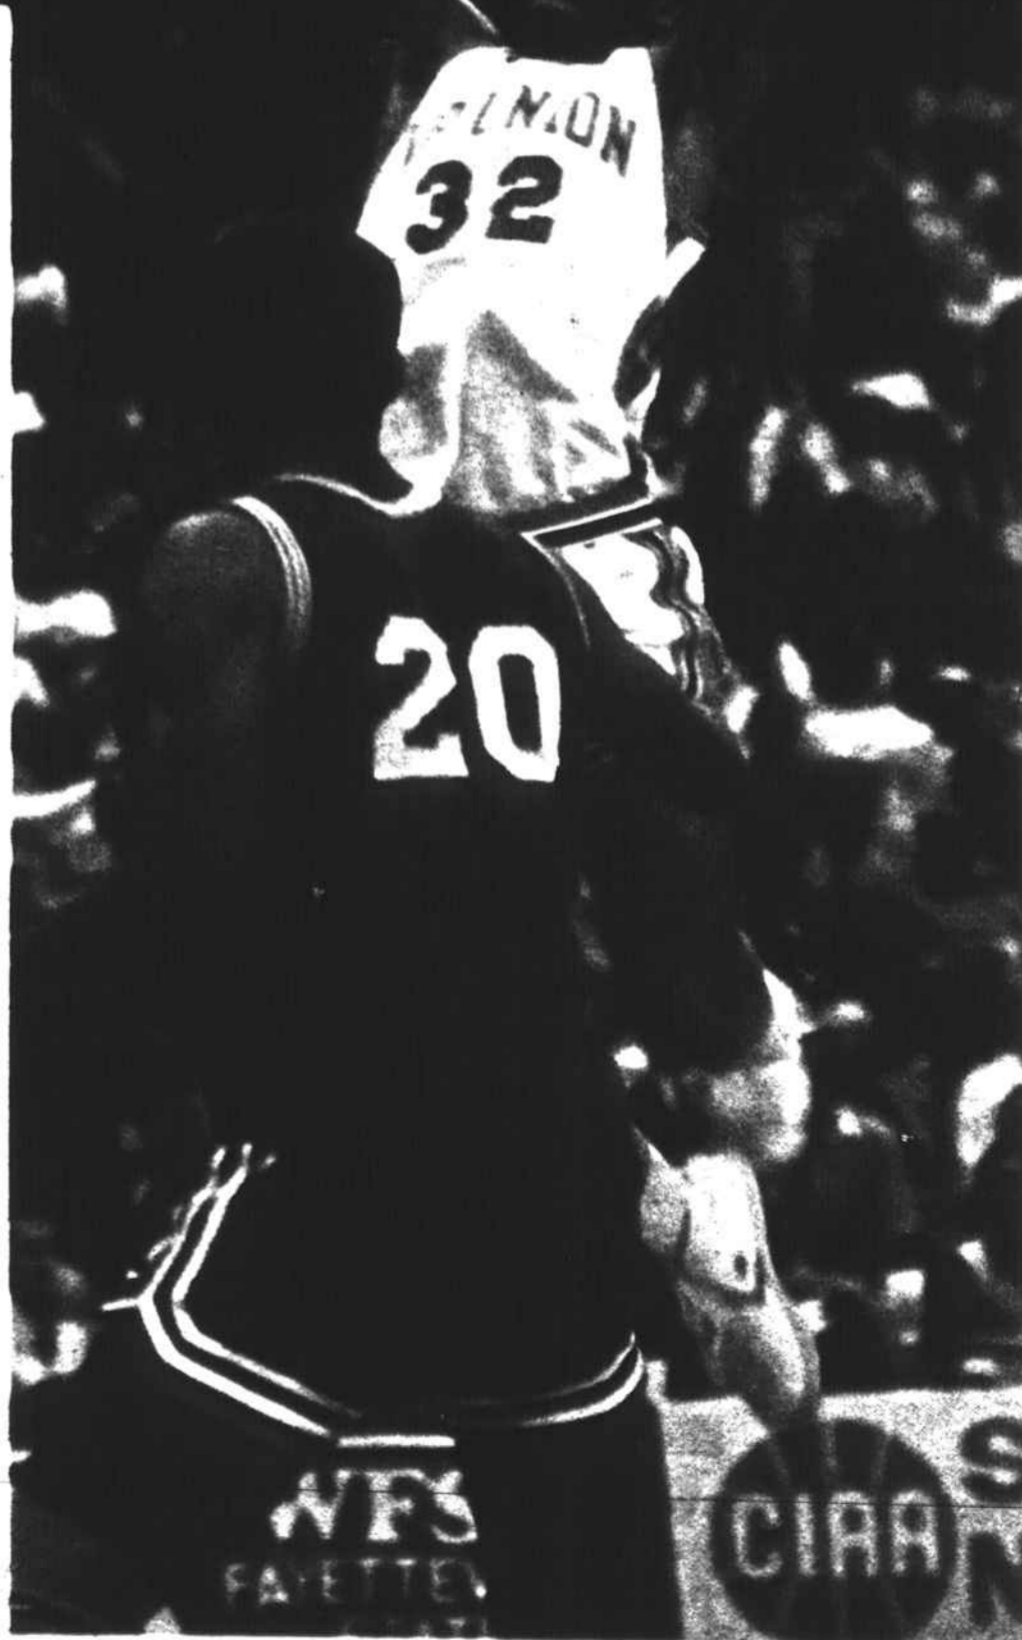

Union has been rated the top Division II team in the country this year by Sports Illustrated, Norfolk State seventh.

Either may be number one come March.

Please See Page 17

BASKETBALL
PREVIEW '86

One high-flying reason Union again will be tough: forward Jamie Waller (photos by Joe Daniels).