NNPA Rules Set

The scoring format has been adopted for the Charles B. Armstrong NNPA Memorial Golf Tournament, to be played at Winston Lake Golf Course June 21.

The tourney, to be held in conjunction with the 46th National Newspaper Publishers Association Convention, will use the Callaway Handicap System, a complicated set of rules in which scores are determined by throwing out a golfer's worst holes.

Deductions are based on the gross score, with the graduated number of holes that can be deducted based on the gross. Up to six holes can be deducted from the scorecard, but no score that exceeds twice the par of a hole can be deducted.

For example, a score of 76 at the par-71 Winston Lake Course would earn a single deduction; say, a seven on a par-4 hole. Thus, the golfer's handicap would be based on that hole, and he or she could deduct seven from the gross score of 76 for a handicapped score of 69. If a golfer shot 96, he or she could deduct three holes. If the worst scores were nine, eight and seven, the golfer uses 24 as the handicap and is given a handicapped score of 72.

The 18-hole tournament will have three flights, with trophies given in each flight. Prizes will also be given for the longest drive and closest to the pin on the par-3 hole.

An entry fee of $25 is due by June 14 and can be mailed to the Winston-Salem Chronicle, P.O. Box 3154, Winston-Salem, N.C., 27102. The entry fee includes green fee and cart.

A featured attraction will be a clinic by PGA Tour standout Jim Thorpe, who was fourth in earnings last year. Thorpe is a native of Roxboro.

The tourney, sponsored by Adolph Coors Co., is named in honors of the late Charles B. Armstrong, who was founder and publisher of the Chicago Metro News. Before his death in 1984, Armstrong was a frequent organizer of the golf tourney that is held in conjunction with the NNPA Convention.

The NNPA was founded by John H. Sengstacke of Chicago in 1940 to bring together black newspapers from throughout the country. At that time, 21 papers were members.

The association has grown to include some 140 members and promotes the interests of the black press in government and business from its headquarters in Washington, D.C.

For more information on the NNPA tournament, call Winston Lake Pro Ernest Morris at 727-2703.

Women's Pro League

A new women's professional basketball league will include an entry in Charlotte.

The National Women's Basketball Association (NWBA) will play a 48-game schedule that starts in November. Teams include the Carolina Blaze (Charlotte), Georgia Peaches (Atlanta), Virginia Mermaids (Atlanta), Louisiana Blues (Monroe, La.), Texas Twisters (Austin, Texas), California Stars (Anaheim) and Cincinnati Tiger-Cats.

"There are thousands women athletes in our country who graduate or leave our colleges and universities each year and their talents are going to waste," NWBA Commissioner Wayne Fulcher said. "These talented women usually have to put an abrupt end to a career that has been a major portion of their lives. Some of these women are forced to go to Europe and play on teams which are not their equal."

Fulcher said he expected player salaries to range from $10,000-$18,000 the first season. John Russell, former ACC official, will serve as supervisor of officials for the new league.

The Charlotte franchise will play in 3,500-seat Park Center. For more information, write Fulcher at P.O. Box 240298, Charlotte, N.C., 28224.

County HOF

North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano told a gathering at the Winston-Salem/Forsyth County High School Hall of Fame induction banquet that ordinary people can do extraordinary things.

Take Valvano, for instance. Before his tremendous success at Iona and N.C. State, he suffered through many failures. Among those failures was a 78-point loss in his first game as a collegiate coach at Johns Hopkins.

"If somebody would have told me I'd win a national title a decade later," Valvano said. "I'd say in what sport, marbles?"

But Valvano's 1983 team won the NCAA basketball championship and he has been so successful as a coach that the university hired him as its athletic director starting this summer.

The six people who were inducted last Friday at the Hyatt Hotel also are ordinary people, Valvano added. And they achieved some extraordinary things, such as William A. "Head" Griffin's earning all-state honors three times in football and three times in basketball while he was at Atkins in the early '50s.

Big Apple League

The second Big Apple Summer Basketball League will open play June 7 at Hanes Hosiery Recreation Center.

The league may have as many as 10 teams this year, according to league spokesman Ben Piggett. It had eight last year. Although Big Apple Commissioner Walter Funderburk would prefer to stick with that number, he has had overwhelming response for application to the league. Funderburk said a decision on the number of teams would be made Thursday night at the league's final preseason meeting. It starts at 7:30 at Hanes Hosiery.

That is the final date for payment of league dues.

The Lakers, led by Robert Little and Louis "Choc" Lowery, are defending champions. They will go under the name the Rockets this season.
