Lampados Club lends helping hand

Psi Phi Chapter of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity Inc. recently spent time providing a much needed community service.

Members of the Lampados Club of the fraternity helped 38 homeowners comply with a new city ordinance requiring residents to plainly display their house numbers.

The city has given residents not in compliance with the new ordinance a year to comply. The new ordinance says that house numbers must be at least three inches high, within three feet of the front door, and in plain view from the street.

Members of the Lampados Club targeted certain areas in Winston-Salem where homes were found not to be in compliance. With the permission of the occupants, the Omega pledges put numbers on targeted homes on Saturday, April 9. Purchase of materials needed for the project was underwritten by the participating members of the Lampados Club.

John W. Moore, Chairman of the social action committee for the Lampados club, indicated the project was developed as a result of the city survey of homes where addresses were not visible to local police, fire fighters, and emergency medical services.

"The concern of the city, and one which we share," said Moore, "is that it is sometimes difficult to give aid to those in need if their homes can not be readily located in an emergency."

The Lampados Club of Psi Phi chapter viewed this situation as an opportunity to provide a much needed community service, and as a way to motivate others who have not complied with the ordinance to do so.

In its initial survey the club targeted more than 50 homes across the city. Homes on Manchester, Wilkes, Sprague, Mount Vernon, Noble, Alameda and Page streets were identified. Also, homes on Louise Road, Pressman drive and one on Gray Avenue were found to be in need of servicing. Of this original number, 38 were benefactors of the club's community service project.

Permission of the home owners was obtained before the services were provided. Support for the project came from members of the parent body of the organization, Psi Phi graduate chapter.

Members of the Lampados Club are: Rudy Anderson, Charles W. Plummer, John W. Moore, Marc Hunter, Wayne D. Watkins, Robert Scales, Jr., Barry D. Rountree, Al Roseboro and David Plummer.

Kenny Faulkner and Robert McCollum coordinated the activities of the Lampados Club.

James Franklin is the basilicus of the graduate chapter, Psi Phi.
