

Scouting for Food to begin this weekend

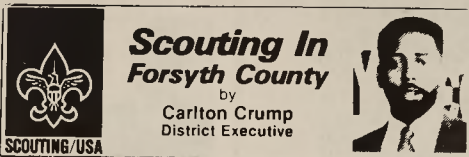

This Saturday, Nov. 12 will be the beginning of The Boy Scouts of America, Scouting for Food project. The Scouts will be leaving bags on doors for residents to fill with canned goods to be picked up on the following Saturday, Nov. 19th.

Those packs and troops participating are Pack and Troop 818 of Zion Hill Baptist Church, Pack and Troop 929 of St. Stevens Baptist Church, Pack and Troop 927 of Kimberly Park Homes, Pack 805 of Grace Presbyterian Church.

818 will be covering the Northside area around Glenn and Patterson avenues. 929 will be covering the Bowen Boulevard area. 917 will cover the Morningside area along Reynolds Park Road, and 929 and 805 will cover the Carver School Road area. We are waiting for more units to join in and help our efforts.

Please give generously to Scouting for Food. The scouts will pick up the bags on Nov. 19.

Homecoming 1988
Several Scouts participated in WSSU Homecoming parade last Saturday. Troop 916 of United Metropolitan Church entered an impressive camp-site float in the parade. Troop and pack 929 of Kimberly Park also had a Scouting float in the parade. Other units who participated were Pack 86 of First Baptist Church and Pack 869 of Mount Zion Baptist Church.

Hornets invite Scouts
The Charlotte Hornets have invited the Boy Scouts of America to attend any of their home games at discounted prices. The BSA can be a part of the excitement when the Hornets challenge the NBA's best. Scouts can choose from 41 home games when the likes of Michael Jordan, Brad Dougherty, Sam Perkins, and Larry Bird visit the New Charlotte Coliseum.

All the NBA action can be quite affordable especially considering that scouts in groups of over 25 can receive discount tickets.

Scouts invited to drag race
The International Volkswagen Association has invited the Boy Scouts of America to attend its Thanksgiving Classic on Nov. 20, 1988. All Boy Scouts in uniform will be admitted free to the race. Each scout may also invite his parents to attend.

The gates open at 8 a.m. with race climination beginning at 2 p.m. The Bug Bash Thanksgiving Classic will provide an exciting fun-filled day for all scouts.

The Farmington Drag is located off Highway 801 off I-40 west, 18 miles west of Winston-Salem.

Scouting for Food

This weekend (Nov. 12) several thousand Forsyth County Scouts will spend their Saturday helping to gather food for the hungry in this area.

As their first step in the Scouting for Food Good Turn, local Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, and Explorers will be canvassing neighborhoods in Forsyth to distribute collection bags for food door-to-door.

They will be joining 5.2 million Scouts nationwide in this massive, first-ever food campaign.

The following Saturday, Nov. 19, Scouts will be returning to pick up the bags filled with canned goods. Their goal is to collect as much food as possible for the Food Bank of Northwest North Carolina, which will distribute the food through local organizations to the needy in Forsyth and other areas.

All Scout Units in the Old Hickory Council's eight counties are participating. The Council's area includes Ashe, Alleghany, Watauga, Wilkes, Stokes, Surry, Yadkin, and Forsyth counties.

Last year, many Forsyth residents sought help in obtaining food for themselves and their families. According to Nan Holbrook, executive director of the Food Bank based in Winston-Salem, the Scouting for Food Good Turn will provide food pantries in the eight counties with 4 full months' supply of food.

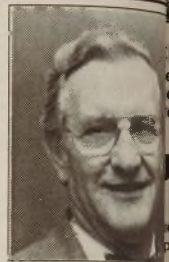

"The hungry in our Northwest area are part of the 20-million people nationwide who are hungry at some time each month," Ms. Holbrook said. "We think the Scouts are to be commended for their concern and efforts in assisting in this nationwide effort."

Lucien Rice, Field Director for Old Hickory Council in Winston-Salem, said similar appeals will be undertaken Nov. 12-19 through each of the nation's 409 Scout councils.

On Dec. 16, Hugh Downs will announce the nationwide effort results on television.

Book Club of Today reviews 'Common Ground' at meeting

The Book Club of Today met recently at the home of Ruth Boone with Catherine Simmons presiding.

Other hostesses were Iyve McDaniel and Bronnie Daniels. Evelyn Sellers led the devotional period with a reading from Patricia Lorenzo in "Daily Guidepost," which discussed the idea that "we can be what we want to be."

After a fellowship hour and a brief business session, Mrs. Boone reviewed the book, "Common Ground," by J. Anthony Lucas.

The story is set in Boston during the decade of the civil rights movement and it details the lives of three very different families, one Yankee Protestant, one Irish Catholic and one black Methodist. The three families did not consider themselves prejudisced, but as the story reveals the life of each member of each family, it becomes obvious that all are prejudiced and that the children absorb the ideas and prejudices of their adult relatives.

Mrs. Boone said that the book is somewhat difficult to read because of the large number of characters and the numerous threads of the plot. She recommended that it be read in a leisurely fashion.

Other members attending the club meeting were Modesta Earl, Emmalene Goodwin, Annie Hairston, Maybelle Hedgley, Annie Kennedy, Wilma Lassiter, Barbara Phillips, Louise Smith and Marian Wooten.

Science and mathematics school seeks local students

A representative of the N.C. School of Science and Mathematics will be in Forsyth County to conduct an information session about the state high school for academically talented students in science and mathematics Tuesday, Nov. 15, at Carver High School.

The presentation begins at 10 a.m. and is open to the public, but 10th grade students and their parents in particular are invited. NCSSM students are selected during their sophomore year for admission the following fall. Applications for admission in fall 1989 are due Jan. 31, 1989.

NCSSM, the nation's first statewide, residential public high school for students with high aptitude an interest in science and mathematics, is located on a 27-acre campus in Durham, the heart of the Research Triangle.

The coeducational school will enroll 550 students by the fall, representing 90 North Carolina counties. No tuition or room and board fees are charged.

For more information call Carver High School or Ola Stringer at the NCSSM admission office at 286-3366, ext. 607.

Services available for adoptive families

The Forsyth-Stokes Mental Health Center and Forsyth County Department of Social Services are offering new services to families who have adopted and to families considering adoption of children with special needs.

A range of support services including a bi-monthly parent support group, workshops dealing with parenting education and adoption issues, as well as an informative, quarterly newsletter will be offered for no agency fee.

A special needs child is any child who has one or more of the following characteristics: is over the age of six months, is part of a sibling group, is of minority heritage, has physical, intellectual, and/or medical disabilities or who has emotional or behavioral handicaps.

For more information call Sylvia Conrad, adoption consultant, at 725-7777, ext. 321.
