WSSU sports program set

Registration begins Saturday, Oct. 25, at the C. E. Gaines Gym from 9 to 11 a.m. on the campus of Winston-Salem State University for the 1990 National Youth Sports Program. WSSU is one of the many colleges and universities participating in this nationwide program of sports for youth.

In 1990, the National Youth Sports Program (NYSP) will celebrate its 22nd year of providing structured sports activities and enrichment programs to the nation's economically disadvantaged youth. NYSP is funded by the Federal government represented by the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services and administered by the National Collegiate Athletic Association in cooperation with selected colleges and universities. All of the partners provide funding to ensure that each enrolled 10- to 16-year-old will receive, at no cost, sports training and enrichment information, along with the use of collegiate facilities.

Each project attempts to recruit a staff sensitive to the needs of its participants. The overall participant-staff ratio falls within the range of 15-20 to one during 60 percent of the funded days. Forty percent of the funded days may involve activities that are unique to the college environment (e.g., attendance at athletics contests, cultural events, speaker's series, exhibitions, family activities).

A minimum of 15 hours of enrichment instruction is offered to all participants. Drug education is provided for 7.5 hours with additional enrichment sessions addressing nutrition and personal health, career opportunities and responsibilities, higher education, and miscellaneous topics.

Each participant receives a free medical examination administered prior to participation, a minimum of one USDA-approved meal or snack daily and accident-medical insurance coverage. Those interested in registering for WSSU's program are urged to register early for free gifts and other activities.
