Duke Power pushes for donations to provide heating funds for needy

Duke Power Company has issued its annual challenge to businesses and civic organizations to contribute heating funds for needy families in the Carolinas.

In addition to the Community Challenge Heating Fund, Duke Power has already committed $400,000 in matching funds through its Share the Warmth Program, which matches contributions from individual customers, dollar-for-dollar, up to $25 per customer. Last year, this program raised more than $1 million.

Through Duke Power's Community Challenge Heating Fund, the company will match funds raised by area community service organizations to pay winter fuel bills for families whose need is the greatest. "For every $3 raised, Duke's shareholders will contribute $1 ... with the company's total contribution reaching $325,000," said Paul F. Briggs, vice president, Winston-Salem Area, at Duke Power.

Money raised through the program will help to pay for residential heating, including electric heat, natural gas, oil, wood or kerosene.

Area businesses that wish to contribute funds for local relief should contact Crisis Control Ministries at 724-7453 or Sunnyside Ministries at 724-7558.

Help for low-income families

In 1975, Congress created the earned income credit designed to offset the regressive impact that Social Security payroll taxes have on low-income, working families. For many it is an incentive to work and earn income.

This credit is paid to low-income families just like a tax refund. It can mean cash back for working families even if they do not have to pay any federal income taxes at all. Working parents also can arrange to receive the earned-income credit over the course of the year in their regular pay checks.

For 1991, families are eligible if at least one member has worked at some time during the year. The maximum credit for 1991 is $1,200 unless you have had a child born in 1991 and/or if you have had costs for health insurance for the child, it could be higher. To be eligible, a family must have an income of less than $21,250 for 1991.
