The Winston-Salem Duplicate Bridge Club voted to cancel its game on Tuesday, December 17 and urged all members to support the Gate City Duplicate Bridge Club (Greensboro) in their First Annual Holiday Party and Grade "C" game. The event was held at the Church of The Redeemer Fellowship Hall, 901 East Friendly Avenue. Results of the game will be reported at a later date.

The local club (W-S DBC) will meet next on Tuesday, January 7, 1992 at its usual place and time.

New officers will be in charge for the next two years.

cate Bridge Club did not have a game on Thursday, December 12. The group plans to play on Thursday, December 19.

Participants in the Monday day games at the Carl Russell Recreation Center were treated to holiday refreshments by Bessie Allen. As usual, the group enjoyed their bridge game.

The two sponsoring clubs (Kings and Queens Duplicate Bridge Club, and Winston-Salem Duplicate Bridge Club) are expected to endorse a recommendation which will allow trophies to be presented to the top players of the meeting. Monday, January 6, 1992 will be the next meeting date for the Monday day games. All bridge players are invited to participate and compete for top player's honors.

Look out of next week's announcement of the top players for 1991. Criteria for the "Pair of the Year" and "Player of the Year" will be based solely on master points earned from local club games only. No tournament points will be considered. Monday games will be included. Happy Holidays To All!

WSSU Board of Visitors hold meeting

"America 2000" was the theme of the December 12-13 meeting of the Winston-Salem State University Board of Visitors.

Dr. Lelia Vickers, director of the division of education, presented the National Goals for Education proposed by the Bush administration to the 25-member board of community and business leaders who meet twice yearly to advise university officials.

The national goals call for all children to start school ready to learn, the high school graduation rate will increase to 90 percent, students in grades four, eight and 12 will demonstrate competency in such areas as mathematics, English, science, history and geography. American students will be the first in the world in science and mathematics achievements, all adult Americans will be literate, and every school will be free of drugs and violence.

Among the participants were education majors and Vincent Parker, principal of Clemmons Elementary School.

"Our schools are a mirror of our society and to meet the goals set for education, changes must occur in our society," Parker said. "In order to accomplish this goal, changes must occur in our society and in families to provide environments which will foster appropriate intellectual, social, physical and spiritual development of children. To free schools of drugs and violence, we must free our communities of drugs."

Judge Biggs to seek re-election in 1992

Judge Loretta Copeland Biggs

Loretta Copeland Biggs, Forsyth County District Court Judge, is pleased to announce that she will be seeking re-election to retain her seat in 1992. Judge Biggs, age 37, was appointed to the District Court bench in February 1987, and was elected to maintain that seat in 1988.

Prior to her appointment and subsequent election, Judge Biggs served as an Assistant District Attorney in Forsyth County from 1984 to 1987. In addition, she served as staff counsel with the Coca-Cola Company in Atlanta, Georgia from 1979 to 1982. Judge Biggs currently serves on the Board of Law Visitors at Wake Forest School of Law, and has been appointed to a number of committees by Chief Justice Exum of the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Judge Biggs has participated in Leadership Winston-Salem; served as Chairperson of the Review and Comment Committee of the Juvenile Justice Council; on the Board of Directors of Big Brothers/Sisters, Forsyth County Volunteers, and the Legal Aide Society; and on the Youth Advisory Committee of the Human Relations Commission.

Judge Biggs is married to Larry Biggs, a vice president at Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, who is manager of the Corporate Leasing Division. She is mother to two children, daughter Jahmela, age 8, and son Jelani, age 6.

DIVIDING THE ESTATE

by HORTON FOOTE

4 time Academy Award winner Horton Foote wrote the screenplays for TO KILL A MOCKINGBIRD, TENDER MERCIES and THE TRIP TO BOUNTIFUL as well as many other well known films and plays.

VARIETY calls DIVIDING THE ESTATE "a fascinating and remarkably simple study of the changing South ... with a powerful narrative that has sufficient depth, poignancy, and originality to move audiences ... the end result is a delightful play with the potential stature of an American classic."
