

Paying your taxes with a money order

It's that terrible time of the year again, T-day, or tax day. With April 15 fast approaching, some of the concerns people have are not only how much they have to pay, but how to pay. As more and more Americans opt to use a checking account, payment of taxes can be a problem. Taxes cannot be paid with cash.

A money order is the perfect solution to paying state and federal taxes according to James K. Bill, president of Travelers Express Company, Inc., the nation's largest volume issuer of money orders. Here are some reasons why:

- Safety — A properly filled out money order is considered a safe way to pay taxes through the mail. This is because it cannot be easily altered or cashed by anyone except the recipient named on the money order (It's important to immediately sign the money order and fill in the state of federal government payee).

- Record Retention — If a money order is lost, it's possible to trace and replace it using the number imprinted on the receipt. Just as important, processed original copies are stored on microfilm for seven years, providing a reliable personal or auditor record.

- Convenience — Money orders are sold in grocery stores, pharmacies, convenience stores, check cashers, financial institutions and, in some states, liquor stores. Travelers Express money orders are sold nationwide. Simply look for the Travelers Express red, white, and blue decal on the door or window of the local establishment.

Money orders are convenient, inexpensive, and have been a reliable form of payment for more than 100 years.

In fact, they've been around almost as long as Americans have been paying income tax.

NAACP Fair Share gets good results

Fred H. Rasheed, the director of the NAACP's Economic Development Department, has reported that Fair Share agreements have produced an extraordinary flow of economic benefits to the African-American community.

According to Rasheed, from 1986-1990, these benefits have exceeded some $47 billion, affecting not only minority entrepreneurs and professionals, but employees who have been provided upper mobility at the companies.

The analysis was prepared by the NAACP's Economic Development Department from information submitted by the participating companies.

More than 50 major corporations have signed the agreements but the analysis of results was confined to only those companies who have signed Fair Share Agreements during the period September 1982 through December 1989.

Operation Fair Share was initiated by the NAACP in 1981 to ensure that a fair share of the dollars spent by African-American consumers are reinvested back in their communities in the form of jobs and business opportunities.

The voluntary agreements identify goals in such areas as purchasing from minority suppliers; utilization of African-American contractors, professionals, and financial and insurance institutions; establishment of affirmative action programs; opportunities for advancement into senior management positions; representation on corporate boards, and philanthropic contributions to worthy African-American organizations and causes.

Desire

Once in a while, I wish that I knew the future. I don't want to know things years, or months, or even weeks in advance. I'd just like to know the future about five minutes ahead of my worst enemy. Just five minutes before he makes his critical move. Then bamm, I could slam him with his own thoughts.

My wife would never believe it but I really would like to know what it feels like to give birth to one of our children. I am not interested in carrying the baby for the full nine months. No sirree Bob. I'd just like to know what it feel like during the last three minutes of labor — make that two minutes — make that a minute and be sure that the epidural is set to the max!

I'd also like to know what it feels like to give children milk from my breast — to feed them and think of their nourishment being dependent solely upon me. Imagine that.

And speaking of truly stupid things, I'd love to get in the ring with Mike Tyson just to see if I could hit him one good time upside his big head. I bet I would be just like the signifying monkey running around trying to get out of the way, all up on top of the ropes.

Of all the stupid fantasies, this is my favorite. I'd really like to be America's television executive for one month with the sole responsibility of programming for all of American television. For 30 straight days, I'd program nothing but the Lawrence Welk Show, Sesame Street, and reruns of Bonanza, and maybe a few episodes of The Cosby Show. At night, I'd play nothing but reruns of Billy Graham's favorite sermons. What a great thought!
