

(L-R) Rev. Cecil Bishop and Marlene Bishop accept a Sara Lee check for $2,500 from Robert Brown at the A.M.E. Zion Church conference.

Sara Lee makes contribution

Sara Lee Corporation, an international packaged food and consumer products company made a donation to the A.M.E. Zion Church in conjunction with the 44th Quadrennial Session of its general conference held in Atlanta, Ga., July 22-31.

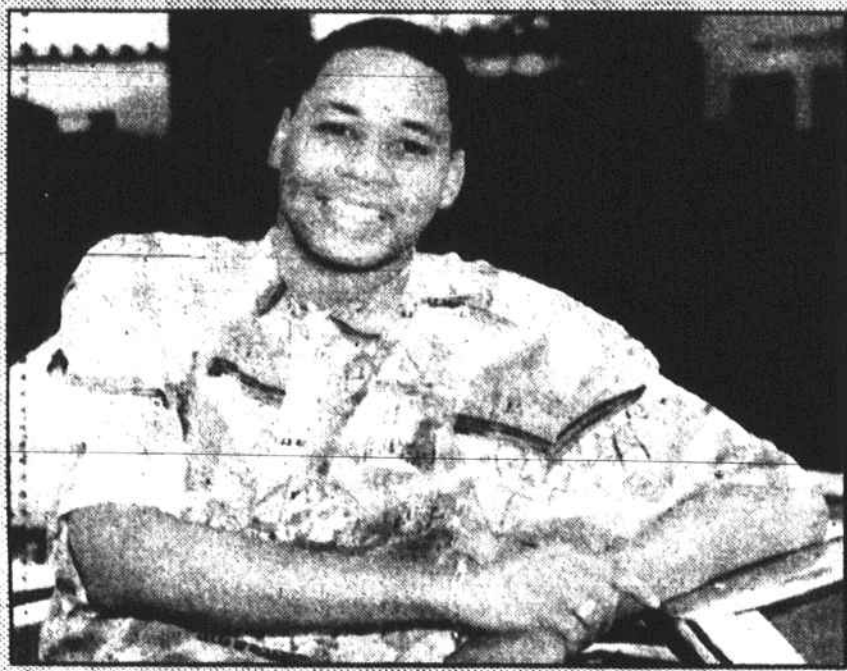

Founded in 1796, the A.M.E.

Zion Church is one of the oldest black dominations in the United States, boasting a membership of over 1,500,000 located in 7,000 churches throughout the world.

Receiving the donation on behalf of the church was Bishop Cecil Bishop, presiding bishop of the Eighth Episcopal District, and his wife Attorney Marlene W. Bishop, Missionary supervisor of the Eighth Episcopal District.

Sara Lee Corporation was represented by Robert J. Brown, President and CEO of B & C Associates, which is an international public relations and consulting firm.

Hanging with Cooper

Mark Curry, seen recently in Los Angeles, sees no problem juggling his stand-up comedy dates while appearing in his first situation comedy series, Hanging With Mr. Cooper. The sit-com, described as a black version of Three's Company, is about a substitute school teacher sharing a house with two women. The show is on the ABC fall lineup.
