Andrea Adams introduced Donna Griffith from the Breast Clinic. She enlightened the wives about breast cancer issues. Griffith said one out of every eight woman will have breast cancer but there are many precautions to follow.

Members who were present were: Lonnie Robinson, Mildred Leak, Andrea Adams, Anita Gilliam, Hattie Fulwood, Annie Lewis, Ethel Thomas, Lucy Summers, Mora Williams, Dora Martin, Eloise Smith, Anna B. Hay, A Taylor Jones, Maybelle Hedgley, Susie Drayton, Marion Butler, Emmaline

Goodwin, Shirley Wright, Brenda Davis, Shirley Werts, and Mattie M. Walker.

Hostess for the evening was Athea T. Jones. Easter bibles were presented to new members.

The ministers wives meet each first Tuesday in the month. All interest wives of pastors, associates and widows are invited to attend. The theme is "Not Trying, but Trusting."

Presbyterian Moderator to Speak Locally

Salem Presbytery will have former General Assembly Moderator Albert C. Winn speak for the annual Kaleidoscope Church in the World Division workshop March 27 at Parkway Presbyterian Church in Winston-Salem. Winn has been a pastor, author of several books, professor of Bible at Stillman College, professor and president of Louisville Presbyterian Seminary.

In addition to Winn's address, there will be workshops on race relations, hunger ministry, health care, women's ministry, evangelism, campus ministry, ecumenical relations, international missions, criminal justice and peace-making.

Registration forms may be obtained at any Presbyterian (USA) church or by calling the presbytery office at 766-3393.

Reynolds Temple Holds Revival

Reynolds Temple CME Church will hold its Spring Revival from Sunday through Tuesday. This three-night revival will be conducted by the Rev. Lloyd L. Watkins Sr., pastor of Hanes Memorial CME Church of Winston-Salem.

Watkins is a native of Sumter County, Ala. and received his early education in the public schools there. He earned his bachelor of arts degree from Miles College in Birmingham, Ala.; his master of arts degree from Phillips School of Theology of the Interdenominational Theological Center in Atlanta; and doctor of ministry from Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur, Ga.

He is married to Charlene T. Watkins, and they are the parents of Lloyd Jr. and Stephanie Lashon.

Watkins is a veteran in the service of the Lord. He answered the call to preach at the age of nine and received his first pastoral appointment at the age of 16.

The public is invited to come and hear this spirit-filled servant of God proclaim the gospel. Services will begin at 7 p.m. nightly. The Rev. Doretha S. Baldwin is pastor.
