

500 Coaches are Expected to Attend BCA Convention this Week

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) - Nearly 500 coaches are expected to attend this weekend's Black Coaches Association convention in Orlando, Fla., to examine changes in the BCA's relationship with the NCAA, organizers said.

The theme for the 7th annual convention is "United to Make a Positive Change in Education."

The BCA, led by Drake men's basketball coach Rudy Washington, threatened to boycott part of this year's basketball season to protest what the coaches called racism in National Collegiate Athletic Association scholarship policies.

NCAA Executive Director Cedric Dempsey will be one of the speakers at the convention, along with Southern California men's basketball coach George Raveling; Benjamin Chavis, the executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; U.S. Rep. Alcee Hastings, D-Fla., vice chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus; and NCAA President's Commission member Cordell Wynn of Stillman College.

The BCA will be honoring its coaches of the year - Arkansas' Nolan Richardson, who led the Razorbacks to the national championships; Southern California women's coach Cheryl Miller and Howard football coach Steven Wilson.

The coaches will also hold basketball and football clinics for Orlando children.

Cultural Olympiad to Collaborate With National Black Arts Festival

ATLANTA (AP) - The Atlanta Committee for the Olympic Games announced Wednesday a collaboration with the National Black Arts Festival to bring authentic African musical performances and art exhibits to Atlanta.

The 10-day Celebrate America festival will be July 29 to August 7 as part of ACOG's Cultural Olympiad leading up to the 1996 Games. Performances and exhibitions will be held throughout Atlanta, including Piedmont Park, where an African village and marketplace will feature over 150 vendors with traditional African crafts, jewelry and pottery.

WSSU Can Not Afford

WSSU athletic department on several occasions, but it seems as though they are content. They say that there is no need to expand to other sports because they can't fill up Bowman Gray Stadium for football or the C.E. Gaines complex for basketball. They seem to think that one will feed off of the other.

They are dead wrong. The WSSU campus is less than a mile away from Reynolds Park Golf Course. Many of the WSSU alumni are superb golfers and would definitely be interested in lending some tutoring and training. As easily as they solicited sponsors for one tournament, imagine what they could get for a program.

Conjuring up the antiquated excuses of being lowly budgeted, black and because we're a CIAA program will not hold water.

Golfers are also poor and middle-class, black and Hispanic, athletic and disabled, women and children, and living in all sort of arrangements.

Golf has also become one of the biggest attributes for young black males seeking status in this complex job market.

Golf teaches you etiquette and business mannerisms. It allows you to utilize creative social acumen.

WSSU can no afford to not have a golf program.

In my experience, the more outlandish the excuse the more likely it is to be authentic.
