Winston-Salem Chronicle

The Choice for African-American News and Inform

THURSDAY, MAY 4, 1995

75 CENTS

Power concedes nothing without a struggle. - Frederic

Petition Seeks to Remove Judges

30.1 [C]. [B

OMEGAS: NAACP TOURNAMENT RESUL

igen sections

By VERONICA CLEMONS Chronicle Staff Writer

Attorney Phillip S. Banks, III has submitted a petition to the House of Representatives that seeks to remove Judge William Osteen from the bench.

In addition to Osteen, the petition asks for the impeachment of Judges Frank Bullock, James B. Wolfe, Jr., Jerry Tart and Robert Mehridge alleging that they willfully misapplied the law and circumvented his right to a "Republican form of government under the federal constitution."

William Horton is also named in the

see PETITION page 13

Walter Marshall

Marshall Says, 'Finish Atkins'

SALL SHE HAD

LIFT EVERY VOICE

By VERONICA CLEMONS Chronicle Staff Writer

Scaling back on promised renovations to Atkins Middle School is not acceptable to the community, school board member Walter Marshall said at a recent board meeting."

"If they had done the project when they were supposed to, we wouldn't have to look at this now," he said.

VOL. XXI, No. 36

Atkins renovations were included in a 1989 bond referendum. But because of cost overruns in the other projects, Atkins was never completed. School officials

see MARSHALL page 13

Bill Would End Equal Opportunity

By JOE JOHNSON Capital Correspondence

A bill introduced by Rep. Russell Capps, R-authorities, boards, commissions, councils and agencies to end.

"If this bill curtails and affects equal opportunity in a negative way then I have serious concerns," said Rep. Larry Womble, D-Forsyth. "I don't think we should be going anything that will be a detriment to equal opportunity."

Wednesday was Minority Legislative Day at the General Assembly.

Rep. Larry Womble

Wake, could end an era of opportunity for minorities and women.

Capps' bill, which was introduced in the House about a month ago, calls for all preferences based on race, sex, color or ethnicity in public hiring, letting of public contracts and in appointments to various African Americans from across the state came to Raleigh. And they wore buttons on proclaiming pride with the slogans "Lift Every Voice" and "We Pay Taxes, Too."

"We feel that it is important that we as African Americans come together and speak with one voice." said Mary Peeler, executive director of

see BILL page 13

Local citizens gathered in Grace Park to promote Non-Violence Day in Winston-Salem.

NAACP Calls for Community Bonding A Peace vigil reflects on Oklahoma Tragedy

By VERONICA CLEMONS Chronicle Staff Writer

William Tatum, NAACP President, called on the Winston-Salem community to bond and send out messages of non-violence.

"There is a call to this community that we all get together, join hands and say that violence is not the way," he said.

Tatum was one community leader that spoke a few words at a community vigil Tuesday evening to promote Non-Violence Day." The theme for the city was 24 Hours of Peace and Goodwill with a goal of having a 24-hour period without any violent acts.

Sponsors of the program included the Human Relations Commission, NAACP, Black Men/Women Against Crime, the Mayor's Task Force on Violence and the W-S/FC Drug and Alcohol Coalition.

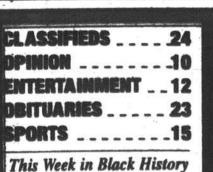

Victor Lefkowitz, chairman, of the Winston-Salem Human Relations

Commission said one thing needed to curb the amount of violence in the world is a change in attitude. People, must believe, he said that there are better ways to solving problems.

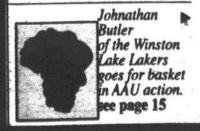

"It's unfortunate that there is an element that believes anarchy is preferable over dialogue," he said.

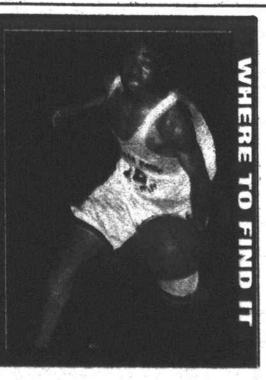

The people who attended the vigil reflected on the violent tragedy in

see NAACP page 13

fay 1, 1981, Death of Dr. Clarence . Bacote (75), historian and olitical scientist, in Atlanta.

Fifth-Graders Receive Hands-on Experience

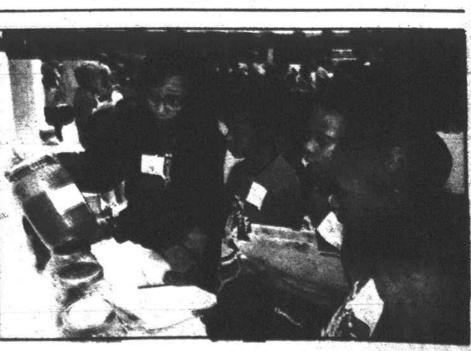

More than 400 fifth-grade students and their teachers from eight school systems in the western Piedmont Triad have teamed with area scientists to bring relevant, handson science applications to life in their classrooms.

This spring fifth-graders from 16 schools in the region have been participating in the Scientists in the Classroom project, sponsored by the Western Triad Science and Math Alliance in conjunction with scientists from Hibco Plastics in Yadkinville, Kobe Copper in Pine Hall, Lydall-Westex Inc. in Hamptonville and R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

The scientists volunteered in response to an invitation

see FIFTH page 13

Shelia Cash inspects a project conducted by Mineral Springs fifth graders.

FOR SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION PLEASE CALL 722-8624