nne Little receives

COMMUNITY

Events celebrate youth and business

New Zion pastor calls it quits

Vol. XXVI No. 41

IRONICLE The Choice for African American News

123 062201 SERIALS DEPARTMENT CB #3938 DAVIS LIBRARY

UNC CHAPEL HILL CHAPEL HILL NC 27514-8890 THURSDAY, MAY 25, 2000

look at teen

Coalition for Drug Abuse Prevention met with a f parents, students and law enforcement agents at on the problem of underage drinking.

parent who attended the meeting said it is imporparents to stay involved in their children's lives, ly in high school.

icia, not her real name, is one of those parents es not drop her son off at a football game. She re with him, even if he is not seated next to her. ee those parents who (drop their kids off) and I You have no clue," she said.

ording to a survey the coalition took at local students who drink do it at sporting events and e thing we heard a lot was there isn't much to do ton, so if you're drunk or high you're doing it in a way," said Jill Miller, one of the facilitators for added that students have a casual attitude about and smoking marijuana.

Is are usually into alcohol, like wine coolers, while oke weed and drink beer," Miller told the group. Troxler, executive director of the coalition, said has been fighting against underage drinking for She said in this election season it is important for

See Drinking on A11

Weed and Seed Coordinator William Sturdivant passes out balloons at the program's community day.

ommunity Day attracts the masses

BY PAUL COLLINS THE CHRONICLE

When Daria Quinsaat heard the Winston Lake Drummers perform Saturday at Weed and Seed's Cleveland Avenue Community Day, she

"It was in my blood, my Tahitian blood, the drums, you know," said Quinsaat, who works for the Winston-Salem Housing Authority after-school program in the Cleveland community.

In addition to the drum music, Quinsaat especially liked the drug display at Community Day. "I don't do drugs and I didn't know what

See Community on A9

NOI calling on families to demand change

THE CHRONICLE

The men, more than 1 million strong, marched for atonement and change. The women marched for unity and solidarity. The families will march for all of the above and much more. The Million Family March is the latest reincarnation of the massive march on Washington concept. Like its trailblazing ancestors, 1996's Million Man March and 1997's Million Woman March, the Million Family March, which will be held Oct. 16, is being spearheaded by the Nation of Islam (NOI).

Local NOI mosques are in the process of educating communities about the mission of the march and recruiting those who want to

The Min. Mikal Muhammad Min. Muhammad

of the Muhammad Mosque in Winston-Salem said the march, for the first time in this nation's history, will give families an opportunity to take issues like violence, crime and education to the people

See NOI on A3

Min. Farrakhan

hurch hopes new center ill enlighten young minds

VIN WALKER RONICLE

Rev. L.M. Johnson the story of Moses part-Red Sea when he told his gation at Ephesus Sev-Day Adventist Church one of the many obstacles ere overcome during the action of the church's new ion and community cen-construction company to build the facility had hnson that the land where ing lot for the center was built was unfit for conon. To fix the problem cost close to $50,000, n said he was told.

able to pay that steep cost, n said the church prayed niracle is what the church en an engineer came a few ter to tell Johnson that the m was only minor. hen you walk over to the

you are walking on partd," Johnson said from the pulpit at the church a few minutes before a ribbon cutting for the new center, which is adjacent to the church's edifice on Cleve-

The school moved into the church, sharing a space in the rear of the building with church offices and other facilities. Church officials say the new The 13,500 square-foot center school provides all the space

'When you walk over to the center, you are walking on parted land." - The Rev. L.M. Johnson Adventists' well-known education programs and school. The church has operated a school for close to 50 years.

Currently grades preschool through eighth are served by the school. The school once called a tidy, three-story building on Ivy Avenue home, but the structure was sold several years ago.

will serve as a home for the needed to cultivate young minds. The building contains several classrooms, offices for the school's principal and nurse, and a full-fledged media center. The added space will also allow the school to increase its population

> "The Lord has been very, very gracious to Ephesus," Johnson said. "This is the light shined tremendously.

Members and friends of Ephesus Seventh-Day Adventist Church prepare to cut the ribbon Sunday afternoon for the church's brand new community and education center.

in a dark place."

The ribbon cutting brought together many men and women who dreamed for years of opening the school. Some gave generous contributions to jump-start construction; others can easily remember the school's rich history and the men and women who were the first to run it.

Robert Williams, principal of the church's school, talked about the magic of grand openings. Openings, he said, always signal the start of something "fresh" and "new." He said the opening of the new school building is especially symbolic because it means more than just opening up a structure.

See Church on A10

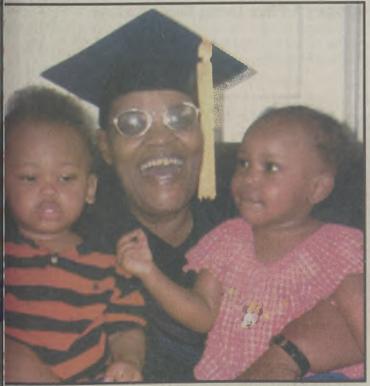

Photo by Felecia McMillar

a Reid, 57, poses with her two grandchildren.

Woman, 57, graduates from college after overcoming abuse, alcohol

BY FELECIA P. MCMILLAN COMMUNITY CORRESPONDENT

On the night before her graduation from college, Claudia M. Reid, 57, could not sleep. Due to her nervousness, she arose at midnight and at every hour on the hour until 6 a.m. when it was time for her to get dressed for the big event.

A caravan of six carloads of her children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and friends followed her to N.C. A&T State University on Saturday, May 13, to watch her receive her bachelor of science degree in nursing. When she walked across the stage, she could hear the cheering of her family.

"My grandchildren were standing at the end of the aisle in a large group yelling, "Grandma" and "G-G." My children yelled "Mama!" and my friends called me by name. The babies were just hollering," she said with much laughter.

"I wanted this march. I didn't just want the through every step. That is an achievement for me, and I was proud of myself for doing it.'

Reid discovered that she wanted to be a nurse in the early 1970s when she took a friend to apply

"I know that I have had angels watching over me."

Claudia M. Reid

for a job at a nursing home. Reid spoke with a registered nurse on staff, who gave her a guided tour of the facility. Reid watched her as she fed the patients, bathed the patients and gave general care of the clients.

"I fell in love with the place and the people. I started making plans to be a nurse because she seemed to love what she was doing. When I met degree. This is closure," said Reid. "I went her, I ran across my first angel," said Reid. "I had been floundering around not knowing what I wanted to do or to be. I went to college at A&T, but I dropped out and got married. My whole life changed, but not for the better. I was a battered wife, a victim of domestic abuse with a tragic end. After all the debts were paid, I still wanted to be Reid went to Forsyth Technical College and studied automotive mechanics, but she was interested in health care.

"I had to make a decision. I either had to cook or get out of the kitchen. I could feel sorry for myself or I could go to school," she said.

In 1991, Reid enrolled in the licensed practical nursing program at Forsyth Technical College. Her goal was to work for a year, attain a two-year degree; however, her ultimate goal was a B.S. degree in nursing. She attended Winston-Salem State University for a while. She then transferred

See Reid on A4

• FOR SUBSCRIPTIONS CALL (336) 722-8624 • MASTERCARD, VISA AND AMERICAN EXPRESS ACCEPTED •