

Student considers future in medicine

National Youth Leadership Forum on Medicine explores Los Angeles' medical community to gain an understanding of how to get to where they want to be within the universe of medicine."

Dr. Roscoe Atkinson of the University of Southern California's Keck School of Medicine said:

Mills

"With influence from great advances in technology, you will be well-equipped leaders of the medicine field. Yours is a generation that is better educated with more resources and access to a wealth of research and methodologies. When faced with challenges, the education and demand you receive will provide you with innovative ideas, which are sure to be readily accepted."

Throughout the program, Mills and fellow students experienced problem-based learning in a series of intense and stimulating simulations, many exercises of which are faced by students in medical schools throughout the country. NYLF/MED culminated in the public health symposium, in which students developed programs to directly impact their communities on the issues of adolescent health, care for the elderly and chronic disease, among others. The goal of the exercise was to encourage the students to develop and implement programs as leaders, addressing concerns on public health issues in their communities.

During NYLF/MED, students had the opportunity to visit some of the best institutions of medical learning and research in the country, including: University of California, Los Angeles School of Medicine; University of Southern California Keck School of Medicine; Osteopathic Medicine of the Pacific; and several others. Not only did students visit these renowned places, they also interacted with doctors, nurses, scientists and professors to gather a greater understanding of medical history, standards and trends.

"Many who participate in our program arrive thinking they have a clear idea of the type of medicine they want to practice," Snyder continued. "By opening new doors for them, students can confirm or adjust their professional plans accordingly, prior to college."

Mills is a rising junior at East Forsyth High School. He is the son of Melanee and Brian Mills. He has one sister, Megan.

A birthday celebration for two

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

A birthday celebration was held for Calvin Cheek and Dr. H. Rembert Malloy on July 17. They were treated to a delicious lunch at Mayflower Restaurant on Peters Creek Parkway. Several walkers from the Hansen Thomas Bowen Park Par Course attended.

Both men do walking exercise there.

These people attended: Thelma Hines, Faye Oliver, Ester Kato, Carrie Robinson and Susan Washington. Cards and gifts were given to Cheek and Malloy.

Attendees enjoyed good fellowship and laughter.

Cheek was celebrating 76 years of life and Malloy, 90 years.

Cheek is retired from R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., and Malloy is a retired surgeon.

Highway Patrol reaccredited by highly esteemed commission

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

RALEIGH - The N.C. State Highway Patrol this past weekend became the largest law enforcement agency in North Carolina to be reaccredited by the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies Inc. (CALEA). The presentation was made to Col. Richard W. Holden, commander of the Highway Patrol, July 12 at the CALEA annual conference in Detroit.

"This is a great honor for all of our employees - the uniformed officers, the civilian personnel, and all those who work so hard in support of this initiative," Holden said. "Being reaccredited means that we have continued to achieve the goal we sought for so long - to remain one of the best in the nation."

CALEA evaluates law enforcement agencies based on 444 standards, including all policies and procedures, organization and management, law enforcement operations, personnel administration and support services. After the on-site visit, the assessors submitted a formal, written report of their on-site activities to the commissioners. The final report reflected compliance with all applicable standards and with required on-site activities.

CALEA has been in existence for more than 20 years. It was established by the nation's four leading executive organizations: the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives, the National Sheriffs Association, and the Police Executive Research Forum.

With its 1,810 employees, the Highway Patrol is the largest police organization in North Carolina to be accredited. Other state agencies that are accredited are the State Bureau of Investigation and the University of North Carolina Department of Public Safety.

Among the 21 local agencies in the state that are accredited are the Durham, Greensboro, Raleigh, and Winston-Salem police departments and the sheriff's departments in Cumberland and Durham counties.

Senior Services wins grant from Kate B. Reynolds Charitable Trust

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

Senior Services Inc. has been awarded two grants by the Kate B. Reynolds Charitable Trust of Winston-Salem, announced Richard Gottlieb, president and CEO of Senior Services.

A $250,021 grant has been awarded to the Meals-on-Wheels program, and a $134,198 grant has been given in support of the Home Care program, he said.

The grants will be used to help fund two of the seven programs managed by Senior Services. Funds awarded to the Meals-on-Wheels program will be used to furnish more than 40,000 hot meals, provide breakfast and supper packs for the community's poorest clients, and establish a new Meals-on-Wheels route in the Konnoak area of Winston-Salem. This much-needed route will serve 14 clients.

The second grant will provide continuing sponsorship of Home Care services for older adults. These in-home services are vitally needed to help frail and homebound seniors remain out of costly nursing homes until absolutely necessary, Gottlieb said.

Senior Services has been an important resource for thousands of homebound elderly in Forsyth County. Last year, for example, Senior Services provided 22,060 hours of Home Care services to older adults who could not manage to live at home without assistance. The Meals-on-Wheels program provided 173,032 meals to the homebound elderly, an increase of 10,569 meals over 2001, Gottlieb said. The grant from Kate B. Reynolds will give Senior Services additional resources to continue to support the critical needs of frail seniors in Forsyth County for yet another year, he added.

Senior Services is seeking community volunteers to help deliver food on the new Meals-on-Wheels route sponsored by the Kate B. Reynolds Trust. For more information, call Amy Jones, volunteer coordinator, at 749-5932.

Child and Adult Care Food Program
Media Release
Work Family Resource Center
313 Indera Mills Court
Winston-Salem, NC 27101
336-761-5100

The Work Family Resource Center announces the sponsorship of the U.S. Department of Agriculture funded Child and Adult Care Food Program for licensed family child care providers. The program reimburses family child care providers for meals and snacks served to children in their care. Although the reimbursement rate depends upon one of several factors, the economic mix of the school district or census tract in which the child care operator lives, the income of the child care operator or the income mix of the children in care, meals are served to all children at no separate charge.

In accordance with Federal law and U.S. Department of Agriculture policy, this institution is prohibited from discriminating on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, age, or disability. To file a complaint of discrimination, write USDA, Director, Office of Civil Rights, Room 326-W, Whitten Building, 1400 Independence Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20250-9410 or call (202) 720-5964 (voice and TDD).
