

Parkland gears up for football season

-See Page B1

Hunt agency honors clients

-See Page A3

Kin gather for their 75th reunion

-See Page B8

75 cents
Celebrating
North Carolina Room
Forsyth County Public Library
660 West Fifth Street
Winston-Salem, NC 27101
Community Journal

THE CHRONICLE

Vol. XXXIV No. 46

THURSDAY, July 31, 2008

ONWARD, CHRISTIAN STUDENTS

Ministers Conference awards scholarships

BY LAYLA FARMER
THE CHRONICLE

Anthony Speas gave up football to concentrate on his studies. A former reserve quarterback at Parkland Magnet High School, Speas, who graduated in May, says his love for the sport had to take a back seat to his ambitious senior year.

"He let his goals for football go. I knew he was growing up then," commented his mother, Mary Speas.

When he first told his friends he was quitting the team, they didn't believe him, Speas says.

They soon discovered just how serious the aspiring physician really was.

"It paid off," he related with a grin. "I did better than I did in all four years."

Speas' performance in the classroom and dedication to his studies paid off in other ways too. He and five other students from the WS/FCS system became the recipients of Martin Luther King Jr. Scholarships from the Ministers Conference of Graduates pose with their parents and members of the Ministers Conference of Winston-Salem.

Photo by Layla Farmer

Winston-Salem and Vicinity. The students - one of whom was already away at her college of choice - were honored last Thursday with a special ceremony at Mt. Zion Baptist Church.

"Students need an opportunity to go to college and to better themselves," commented Dr. Linda Beal, president of the Ministers Conference. "We wanted to give the scholarships to the most deserving people we could find."

In order to be eligible for consideration for the $1000 awards, each student had to be accepted to a historically

See Scholarships on A9

Dr. Allen

Better Late than Never?

Local doctors react to AMA apology to blacks

BY LAYLA FARMER
THE CHRONICLE

The American Medical Association has boldly done what few people or organizations are willing to do - admitted they were wrong.

The association, which is home to more than 250,000 practicing physicians across the nation, issued an apology earlier this month for its role in the perpetuation of segregation and apathy towards civil rights issues that concerned blacks.

African Americans were barred from the association until the late 1960's, according to reports.

"... the AMA failed, across the span of a century, to live up to the high standards that define the noble profession of medicine," writes immediate Past President Dr. Ronald Davis, in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association or JAMA. "...These dishonorable acts of omission and commission reflected the social mores and racial segregation that existed during those times throughout much of the United States. But that context does not excuse them. The medical profession, which is based on a boundless respect for human life, had an obligation to lead society

See Apology on A4

Rising freshmen get a high school crash course

Program designed to cut dropout rates

Photos by Layla Farmer

A student takes part in a DNA lab experiment at Parkland earlier this week.

Right: Rising freshman Savon Rorie stands in the hallway at Parkland.

BY LAYLA FARMER
THE CHRONICLE

Dropout rates in this community and across the nation have long been a topic of heated discussion and debate.

While the theories on why and how they happen may vary and prevention efforts are diverse, most experts can agree that low graduation rates have a negative effect on the economy and on society as a whole.

In the Winston-Salem/Forsyth County School System, Parkland High School's 65.8 percent graduation rate is of particular concern to school officials and the community, as it is the lowest in the system.

In an effort to derail the pattern of student failure, the YMCA of Northwest North Carolina teamed up with Big Brothers / Big Sisters and Family Services to implement a unique program dubbed "Graduating Our Future." Funded by a

See Freshmen on A11

HAWS building losses tenants

Downtown Winston-Salem Partnership and Center for Community Safety find new homes

BY TODD LUCK
THE CHRONICLE

Two longtime tenants of the downtown Loewy Building on Fourth Street have relocated.

The Downtown Winston-Salem Partnership (DWSP) and the Winston-Salem State University Center for Community Safety (CCS) have left the Fourth Street building for other downtown locations.

Forsyth Economic Ventures, a non-profit subsidiary of the Housing Authority of Winston-Salem (HAWS), owns the building and wants the ground-level space that the two agencies occupied for showier clients that can draw more business to the building, one of the downtown's most historic. HAWS offices occupy the third and fourth floor of Loewy, and other tenants include a law office and financial service firms.

The leases were up for both the Center for Community Safety and DWSP. Both were offered other spaces in the building, but the agencies declined.

"We offered them space in the interior of the building so we can bring in a retail establishment or a business establishment that would enhance the building or increase revenues and fit well within the downtown corridor here," said Larry Woods, the executive director of the Housing Authority, which bought the building six years ago.

The Downtown Winston-Salem Partnership supports the effort to use its former space for a more people-friendly business. The goal of the non-profit group is to promote downtown economic development and revitalization. It actively recruits businesses the area, advocates for existing businesses and produces events like the downtown Summer Music Series.

DWSP moved just last week. Its old office is already filled by the local campaign of presidential hopeful Barack Obama. That office is only temporary, though. It will close after the November election.

DWSP's new home is the Chatham

See Loewy on A9

Bennie Williams helps decorate the windows of the new Obama for President office in the Loewy Building.

In Memory of
Charlene
Russell Brown

"Growing and Still Dedicated to Serve You Better"
Russell Funeral Home
Wishes to Thank Everyone For Their Support

822 Carl Russell Ave.
(at Martin Luther King Dr.)
Winston-Salem, NC 27101
(336) 722-3459
Fax (336) 631-8268
russhome@bellsouth.net

