

Series makes contribution to ministers

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

The Preaching to Preachers Series ended its four-month series with a glorious service recently featuring Dr. John Mendez, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church.

A $1,000 check was presented to the Ministers Conference of Winston-Salem and Vicinity on behalf of the Preaching To Preachers Series, which began in July and was held the first Sunday of August, September and October at Union Baptist Church.

The purpose of the series was to bring ministers together from all over the city to be ministered to. The services included workshops for minister's wives, church leaders, choirs and associate ministers. Information briefs were given to pastors about health, banking and finances and insurance.

The series will be held again next year. For more information call Union Baptist, where Dr. Sir Walter L. Mack Jr. is pastor and teacher, at 336-724-9305.

The check presentation took place last week at Union Baptist.

YWCA will have free National Family Health & Fitness Day activities Saturday

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

The YWCA has been selected as a host site for National Family Health & Fitness Day and has scheduled a full slate of free activities and health enhancement opportunities.

The "Gateway to A Healthier You" activities will be held Saturday, Sept. 27, from 10 a.m. - noon at the Gateway YWCA. All activities are free to the community.

The Winston-Salem Storm Men's Semi-Pro Basketball team will provide skills training and clinics with the players. Winston-Salem State University will offer reading sessions for students. The Wake Forest University YWCA Collaborative will offer healthy cooking demos.

Other scheduled events include performances by marching bands, step teams and hip hop dancers, and soccer and kick boxing clinics.

Health education vendors will provide interactive health experiences as well as information on healthier living.
