Arts aficionados and others attended the "Art of HomeOwnership" Sept. 24 to support affordable housing. The event, which featured an auction of miniature homes by local artists, was presented by the Center for Home Ownership, Goler Community Development Corp., S.G. Atkins Community Development Corp. and Associated Artists of Winston-Salem. Leonard Ryden Burr Realty was the sponsor. Standing behind one of the featured homes, "My Summer Home" by Chelen Jordan, are (from left to right) Charlotte Lindell, Board Chairperson of Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Forsyth; Phyllis Caldwell, Center for Home Ownership Director; Michael Ryden, Partner of Leonard Ryden Burr; and Sharon Nelson, Executive Director of the Associated Artists of Winston-Salem.

Rescue Mission combines two thrift stores

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

The Winston-Salem Rescue Mission downtown thrift stores have become a regular stop for bargain hunters from the Triad area. The two thrift stores, located one block apart in downtown Winston-Salem (7th & Oak Street and 7th & Trade Street), have offered shoppers incredible deals on furniture, clothing, appliances and household items for years.

Now, those shoppers will be able to browse for bargains under one roof. The Rescue Mission will begin the process of moving the contents and merchandise from the small store, which offers clothing and house holditems, on Trade Street to the 40,000 square-foot warehouse store on Oak Street last Friday. After much upfitting and refurbishing, the combined store was expected to open this week.

Store sales account for nearly 25 percent of the ministry's overall operating revenue, of which, close to 85 percent of every dollar goes directly to client programs and services.

Kernersville Crisis Control to hold yard sale

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

Ruth Bailey, yard sale chair, holds a collectible Monopoly tin among a mountain of yard sale items.

Crisis Control Ministry will hold their annual yard sale to benefit the programs of its Kernersville office on Saturday, October 16, from 8 a.m. - 1 p.m. at its location at 431 W. Bodenhamer St.

Treasures such as jewelry, holiday décor items, housewares, toys, glassware, small appliances, lamps, pictures, sporting goods, books and other items will fill the parking lot adjacent to Crisis Control Ministry. Items are priced low for a quick sale.

Longtime volunteer and yard sale chair Ruth Bailey commented, "There is no place left to walk in the attic and items are spilling out into other rooms. This is going to be a gigantic yard sale! We hope to raise $2,500 or more from the proceeds to help Crisis Control help those in need in our community."
