THE CHRONICLE

Local Zeta Chapter awards scholarships

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

The Rho Zeta Chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc. hosted its first-ever Pearl Anna Neal Scholarship Luncheon under the theme, "A Celebration of the Arts," on Saturday, May 21.

Held at the Hawthorne Inn and Conference Center, the event celebrated the legacy of Neal, a Charlotte native who is one of Zeta's five founders. She served as Rho Zeta president in the 1940s.

Scholarship Chair Leeanna Lee and President

From left: Leeanna Lee, Rae'shawnda Burgess, Jelissa Morris, Teyara Hudson and Dr. Mesia Moore Steed.

Dr. Mesia Moore Steed pre- local graduating student sented scholarships to three scholars: Rae'shawnda

Burgess of Carver High School; Teyara Hudson of Reagan High School; and Jelissa Morris of Parkland Magnet High School.

There were performances by the Women of Praise dance team from Emmanuel Baptist Church and an original poem written and rendered by Jeanette Stackhouse, a local high school student. Additionally, there was a historical oration about Founder Pearl Neal by Marian Hairston, the chapter historian.

Tourney to honor Jackson and raise money for NCCU

CHRONICLE STAFF REPORT

The Robert "Stonewall" Jackson Legacy Golf Classic will be held on Saturday, July 16 beginning at 8:30 a.m. at the Winston Lake Golf Course, 3535 Winston Lake Road.

The annual event raises money for N.C. Central University's Athletics Department, while honoring the legacy of Jackson, who spent more than three decades at NCCU as an educator and coach.

A decorated WWII soldier, Jackson earned a BS degree in physical educa-tion from N.C. A&T State University after he completed his service to his country. In 1950, he became the first African-American from a historically black college drafted to play in the NFL when he was selected by the New York Giants.

A high school coach once told Jackson that trying to tackle him was like trying to bring down a "stonewall." Jackson lived up to his nickname in the NFL. As a rookie fullback, he rushed for 113 yards and two touchdowns on 12 carries for an average of 9.4 yards per run for the 10-2 Giants.

He came to NCCU in the 1960s. In addition to serving as an assistant football coach and teaching classes on subjects like physical education theory, athletic training and equipment management, Jackson served as the athletic trainer for many years. In 1977, Jackson even served as head football coach for two games.

He was inducted into the NCCU Athletic Hall of Fame in 1997, two years before his retirement. In October 2009, as part of the university's 100th anniversary celebration, Jackson was honored among the Centennial 100 Sports Legends as one of the top 10 coaches in NCCU history.

Jackson passed away on March 14, 2010 in Raleigh. He was 88-years-old.

Many of the countless students he influenced play in the Jackson Legacy Golf Classic, as do other NCCU alumni and supporters, but the event is open to all players.

Registration for teams of four golfers is $250; the fee for individual golfers is $75. The fees include cart and green fees, beverages and snacks. Prizes will be awarded to the top finishers.

To register, go to rsjlegacygolfclassic.org or send an email to team@rsjlegacygolfclassic.org.

> Talented young musician to study at UNCG

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

Adia Iyana Chue, who graduated from RJ Reynolds High School on June 11, will enroll at UNC Greensboro this fall to study music performance. She is the daughter of Marcia and Franklin Chue.

Adia is a violinist and has received the Jack Krusz Memorial

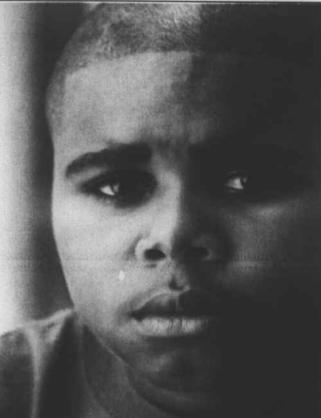

Strings Award for Music Achievement in Strings and the Tripp Joye

from

JUNE 30, 2011 B7

Deltas make pillowcase dresses for African girls

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

"Changing lives one little dress at a time ... " proclaims the tag line on the Little Dresses For Africa web site and represents this organization's efforts to make a difference in the lives of some of the smallest residents of many African communities With those few words, Winston-Salem Alumnae Chapter members of Delta

Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. accepted the challenge to do just that, stitching 60 little dresses. Participating in the Little Dresses Project presented a chance for the chapter to impact the lives of little girls in a very practical way. In September 2010, Little Dresses For Africa representatives travelled to Local Deltas make dresses.

Africa on a mission team and delivered 6,000 dresses, all donated by groups and individuals from across the country

International Awareness The Committee of the Winston-Salem Alumnae Chapter spearheaded a chapter effort using budgeted funds and donations of money, materials and pillowcases from individual chapter members. The committee organized the project to complete the task and sent to the Little Dresses Foundation the dresses along with a donation to assist with shipping costs internationally.

Delta National President Cynthia Butler-McIntyre has called Deltas to "transform lives and impact communities" through action that reflects the Sorority's commitment to meaningful public service. Making little dresses presented yet another way for the Winston-Salem Alumnae Chapter to broaden Delta's legacy of supporting international community causes.

The local chapter's International Awareness Committee members are: Kellie Martin, Elsie Blackman, Pam Bradsher, Daphne Holmes-Johnson, Patricia Grier-Boyd, Delores Graham, LaVern Gaither, Tawana Gates, Cynthia Jeffries and Chairwoman Peggy Moore, chair. Lisa W. Smith serves as the president of the Winston-Salem Alumnae Chapter.

Vulcan Materials gives to Food Bank

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

Materials Vulcan Company, a leading producer of asphalt mix, concrete and other material, sponsored the first annual Mideast Division Sporting-Clays Tournament to support the Second Harvest Food Bank of NWNC.

More than 70 employees, customers and vendors participated in the inaugural event, which was held at the Friendship Sporting Clays facility in East Bend.

Vulcan's In total, employees and friends raised $14,500 for Second Harvest Food Bank of Northwest NC. Commenting on the first annual event, Gray Kimel, president of Mideast Division, noted, "We are extremely pleased by the support from our employees, customers and friends for such a worthy cause. Nothing can be more meaningful than to provide school children with a meal so they can concentrate on their education rather than worrying Vulcan Mideast Division President Gray Kimel, Clyde Fitzgerald and Chris Scott of Vulcan Materials take part in the check presentation.

if they will have something to eat that day."

For every dollar donated, Second Harvest Food Bank of NWNC is able to distribute seven nutritious meals to those in need of food assistance. Clyde Fitzgerald Jr., Executive Director of Second Harvest Food Bank of NWNC, noted that Vulcan's contribution will provide over 100,000 meals to needy individuals in the region.

"Vulcan's long-term support of our program has been tremendous and for them to take the extra step in hosting such a unique event to raise much-needed funds to battle hunger in our community is just fantastic. Thanks to Vulcan and its employees for providing kids a meal," said Fitzgerald.

Memorial Scholarship the Winston Salem Foundation. She was also one of the Chue 2011 concerto competition winners for the Reynolds High School Orchestra.

During her high school years, she competed in the All-County Orchestra and Western Region Orchestra, and performed with the Reynolds Orchestra. She was also a sitting concertmaster, a co-concert master and a member of the Salem College Chamber Orchestra.

The Crosby Scholar has also been member of the Winston-Salem Youth Philharmonic and Symphony. Adia takes private lessons with Ewa Gondek Dharamraj of the Winston-Salem Symphony.

For 1 in 6 children in America, it's an impossible hurdle

What's a life like when getting clothes and medicine ate in doubly Right new nearly 13 million children in America are living in priverty. Working together, we can create opportunity and bold hope. Will you holp?

Go to www.povertyusa.org and get involved.

