

CAREERS

Briefly

Lindsay joins DCCC

Davidson County Community College recently hired Audrea Lindsay as a member of the school's administrative support staff and the TRiO Student Support Services team.

In her new position, Lindsay will be responsible for assisting with the operations of the TRiO Program, supporting the Student Support Services personnel and collaborating with the rest of the team to compile and submit reports.

Lindsay

"It's a joy to give to students what was once given to me, support throughout their college experience at DCCC," says Lindsay. "I hope to impact DCCC students by offering motivation and guidance by my personal experience as a student."

Lindsay received a BA degree in sociology with a minor in psychology from Salem College.

WSSU Photo by Cassett Gerson

The WSSU Class of '62 celebrates its reunion in the new space.

Enterprise Center debuts new conference/banquet space

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

What was once a well-known neighborhood recreational landmark that bustled with the sounds of youth basketball and other community related activity has been reincarnated to create a contemporary conference and banquet event space.

For 60 years, the building at 1922 Martin Luther King, Jr. Drive was home to The Salvation Army Boys and Girls Club. Now, the S. G. Atkins Community Development Corporation has transformed the old gym into a 4,710 square foot, high-tech conference center that is opening its doors to serve the Winston Salem and Forsyth County community in a different capacity. The Enterprise Conference and Banquet Center is on the first floor of The Enterprise Center, a combination business incubator and community education center.

"As the newest addition to The Enterprise Center, this space is more than a typical event center. We also want the space to be used to promote economic development," said Carol Davis, executive director of the S. G.

Atkins Community Development Corporation. "We will focus on planning educational workshops, job training, job fairs, business networking and conferences in addition to community fundraising events, luncheons, receptions and banquets.

The Enterprise Conference and Banquet Center (ECBC) is the culmination of five months of construction and $450,000 in renovations. It officially opened Oct. 18 when it hosted a 50th class reunion for Winston-Salem State University alumni. City Councilman Derwin Montgomery also plans to hold his East Ward Town Hall Meeting at the ECBC today (Thursday, Oct. 25), and

See Center on A5

Submitted Photo

The new facility is 66,000-square-feet.

Company's new Smith Reynolds space is finished

Piedmont Propulsion Systems, LLC (PPS), a subsidiary of First Aviation Services Inc. announced last week the completion of its move to a new facility at Smith Reynolds Airport in Winston-Salem. The new 66,000-square-foot location is at 4400 Lansing Drive, a short distance from the former plant at 3817 North Liberty St.

Officials say the move was made to accommodate PPS's growing business and the acquisition of more state of the art equipment.

"This is a very exciting time in the 64 year history of PPS," said GM Sammy Oakley. "Our new facility will further improve our excellent turn times while maintaining the highest level of quality for our customers. As a result of the wonderful team here at PPS, along with the cooperation of the Federal Aviation Administration, Airport Commission, local, county and state officials we were able to regain full capacity in record time."

PPS is a world leader in the repair and maintenance of propellers and governors for some of the most sophisticated civil and military aircraft. The company recently announced its successful entry into the propeller system for the Bombardier De Havilland Q400 turboprop. PPS also indicated that there were no disruptions to operations during the move.

Taylor joins Capture

Stephanie E. Taylor has joined Capture Public Relations & Marketing. Taylor will be responsible for a wide range of account management, media relations, marketing strategy and event management duties at Capture.

Taylor

She previously served as a public relations and social media intern at Mullen in Winston-Salem. Earlier in her career, Taylor worked at Hanesbrands, Inc. in Winston-Salem and Washington Episcopal School in Bethesda, Md, her hometown.

Taylor received a MA degree with a concentration in communication from Wake Forest University in May 2012; she earned her undergraduate degree from Ohio Wesleyan University in 2007.

Founded in 2005, Capture Public Relations & Marketing offers public relations and marketing strategy, media relations, graphic design, event management and social media outreach services to a wide range of local and regional businesses, nonprofit organizations and schools.

Community Builders

Truliant Photo

The senior management team at Truliant Federal Credit Union volunteered to help build a Habitat for Humanity of Forsyth County home earlier this month. The house was framed by students at the Winston-Salem/Forsyth County Schools Career Center and then moved to the Trent Hill neighborhood. In addition to lending manual labor to the project, Truliant donated $1,000 to Habitat for Humanity. Pictured here are: (from left) CFO Carl Alcon; COO Todd Hall; CIO Bob West; Senior VP of Human Resources & Organizational Development Charles Goransson; President/CEO Marc Schaefer; Steve Joiner, president of TRULIANCES, LLC; Chief Marketing Office Karen DeSalvo; and Senior VP and General Counsel Joe Clark.

Photos by Kiwanis Club of Greensboro

College Night Chair/Founder Allen Kivett, Kiwanis President Harlon Costner and Guilford County Schools Superintendent Maurice "Mo" Green at College Night.

College Night attracts thousands

CHRONICLE STAFF REPORT

About 4,000 students and parents met with representatives from more than 120 colleges and universities at the Kiwanis Club of Greensboro's 40th Annual College Night.

The three-hour event took place Oct. 2 at the Greensboro Coliseum Exhibition Hall. College Night was initiated in 1972 by Kiwanian Allen Kivett. The free event, which is co-hosted by Guilford County Schools, attracts reps from colleges and universities from across the nation.

The Kiwanis Club of Greensboro is one of the largest Kiwanis clubs in the nation with about 175 members. Its mission is to improve the lives of children, through numerous community projects throughout the year.

Two days after College Night, the Club installed its 2012-13 officers during a luncheon at the downtown Marriott Hotel in Greensboro. They are: president, Howard Williams; president-elect, Greg Williams; vice-president, Sheila Cauthen; past-president, Harlon Costner; secretary/treasurer, Liz Reinecke; assistant secretary, Graham Pritchard; and directors John Bayersdorfer, Rick Class, Bob Nolan, Abigail Peoples, Doug Swanson and Randy Underwood.

Sheila Cauthen

Statewide honor for UNC'S Martinat

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

Edwin H. Martinat III, a staff member and alumnus of the University of North Carolina School of the Arts (UNCSA), received the Erskine Bowles Staff Service Award last week from UNC system president Tom Ross at a ceremony in Chapel Hill.

The award is given annually to a staff member at one of UNC's 17 institutions "who has shown exemplary understanding, empathy and devotion to mankind and whose accomplishments are consistent with the goals exemplified by Erskine B. Bowles during his tenure as UNC president and in accordance with the University's public service mission."

Martinat is assistant director of High School Life in the Division of Student Affairs, a position he has held since 2009. In 2008, he received his B.F.A. from the School of Design and Production at UNCSA, majoring in stage management.

When informed that he had won the award, Martinat said he was surprised and honored.

"There are many employees of the University system who deserve this award," he said. "It means so much that this recognition comes from my colleagues."

Martinat was nominated for the award by Elizabeth Spruill, chair of the UNCSA staff council.

"Along with our students, he is one of our greatest and most treasured assets," she said. "He maintains a consistent and demonstrative passion for UNCSA in his job and through his positive interactions with everyone on campus and in the community."

Last spring, Martinat was honored by the campus as the recipient of the Outstanding Service Award, partly in recognition for free zumba classes he teaches twice a week to improve campus morale and fitness. Martinat has also served UNCSA by advising the high school gay/straight student alliance, performing the role of Mother Ginger in "The Nutcracker," serving on the selection committee for the Excellence in Teaching Awards, leading a two-hour

UNCSA Photo
Edwin H. Martinat III

See Martinat on A5