(Historically Black College and University) will join with VOX, a predominantly white, semi-professional choir, as a part of "Singin' Black and White," a project intended to foster ongoing relationships between racially and socially diverse choirs. "The Cry of Jeremiah," is a 30-minute piece that features the chorus, a chamber orchestra and narrator. Covering the struggles, suffering and ultimate deliverance of the ancient prophet Jeremiah, it is the first major choral and orchestral work by preeminent African American composer Dr. Rosephanye Powell whose musical styles range from the baroque to gospel. D'Walla Simmons-Burke, director of the WSSU Choir, will serve as conductor for the performance and the Rev. Dr. John Mendez, senior pastor at Emmanuel Baptist Church, will be the narrator. The event is free and open to the public, but an offering will be taken.

the disciples about their attitude toward children. A little while later, Jesus set a rich young man straight about eternal life. Confused Jesus explained to the disciples that eternal life is a gift from God, not something to be earned. He took the Twelve aside and told them a third time that His death was near. James and John were informed about sitting on the right and left of Jesus. Mark 10 ended with Bartimaeus receiving his sight.

Lesson: Jews from all over the Roman Empire converge on Jerusalem for Passover. The celebration commemorates their freedom from Egypt. At this point some of them want deliverance from Roman oppression. As Jesus approaches Bethpage, He sends two of the disciples ahead to the village with specific instructions to find a colt/donkey that has never been ridden. Based on Zech. 9:9 and 14:1-5, Jesus is ready to declare Himself Messiah. Remember how He used to tell them His time was not yet? They follow the instruction to the letter. The animal represents humility. As He enters the city, the crowd recognizes the symbolism. They spread their cloaks on the road and wave tree branches shouting "Hosanna". The term translates to "save, we pray or help now". "The crowd praises Jesus as Savior. Once in the city, He goes to the Temple, surveys it and returns to Bethany probably to Mary, Martha, and Lazarus' house.

Life's Application: There is so much chaos in this world that many have lost or are losing hope for a brighter day. It seems that we will destroy ourselves and creation. Hallelujah, the Promised one has come! The disciples and the crowd thought that an earthly kingdom was around the corner. They didn't understand. Some of us don't quite get it, either. It isn't about your earthly accumulations that represent your faith; it is about love and compassion. His coming lets us know that God continues to care for all of us! His coming says that in God's time life we will be reunited with Him. The coming of Messiah means that His earthly ministry is about to be completed. As believers our lives are changed forever! Hope is here and the ultimate defeat of evil is next. Hallelujah for He has come!

Warrior's Life from Black Power to Education Reform."

He has ties to North Carolina, having lived and worked in Durham, where he is best known for establishing the Malcom X University.

The 2015 Dr. Sir Walter Mack Sr. Annual Scholarship Award recipient is Eboni Hosch, a sophomore biology major at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

Eboni plans to attend medical school and become a medical doctor, in the field of pathology. In the winning essay that Eboni submitted to the scholarship committee, she acknowledged Dr. Tara Brayboy as an influential African-American in her life.

Dr. Brayboy, who is also a member of Emmanuel, graduated from Wake Forest University and Howard University College of Medicine where she obtained her medical degree.

She works in the Emergency Medicine Department at Carolina Medical Center, in Charlotte, where she conducts research. She plans to work as a primary care physician.

Eboni shares Dr. Brayboy's passion for improving the health of people of color and reducing health disparities. Eboni wants to reach back to the African-American community, especially women, to help educate and bring greater awareness of hypertension, diabetes and breast cancer. She looks forward to finding effective medicines, as well as discovering more ethnic-specific lifestyles that will help African Americans live longer and healthier lives.

Dr. Elva Jones, the scholarship ministry chair says "the scholarship fund is a service ministry of Emmanuel Baptist Church, and represents our commitment to the academic and spiritual development of Emmanuel's college students".
