WSSU players hold basketball clinic at Hanes

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

Winston-Salem State basketball player William Peay is working as an intern at Hanes Hosiery Recreation Center, where the center director is Coach Art Blevins. He put together a basketball clinic, with the help of several teammates from WSSU along with family and friends.

A total number of 43 kids from elementary to high school took part in the clinic, as parents and other department workers watched.

William Peay, along with the help of his older brother Antwain Peay who graduated from Johnson C. Smith University and West Forsyth High; Cedric Myers, a childhood friend of William's at Reagan High School; senior WSSU forward Wykevin Bazemore a four-year All-Conference player who is the younger brother of Atlanta Hawks guard Kent Bazemore; and senior guard Javan Wells, who also played at WSSU. All came out for the special event and to help William put on a basketball clinic for the kids.

William took the kids and split them up by grades, with Antwain Peay working with the youngest kids, taking those kids and leading them through some passing drills, dribbling drills and shooting drills. Looking at the youngest kids in the gym having fun and enjoying the game of basketball brought joy to the parents' faces as they took pictures of their children.

William Peay and Cedric Myers both worked with the middle-school kids on their mechanics on dribbling and shooting the ball, as well as the different types of passes to make on certain situations, and making lay-ups. These kids were put through drills that would help them be more skilled in their basketball ability and things they could use when they go into the gym or at home practicing in the driveway.

Wykevin Bazemore and Javan Wells took the older group of kids into drills that they do every day for WSSU. Watching these teenagers work was very impressive. Out of all the three groups, this group was the only one that the kids didn't want to take a break for water. They were full speed the entire time, working on shooting, moves to get open and moves to get to the basket, while finishing over top of defenders. They even did some defensive drills that I'm sure no one in the gym expected to see, but if you do follow WSSU basketball, you should know their team motto is "Shock N' Awe."

Every kid in the clinic came ready to work hard and get better, and they couldn't have had some of the best people to teach them. In attendance for the older group of kids was Winston-Salem Prep star Mychala Wolf, who just came off of winning the girls 1A state championship.

The dedication that she showed by participating in the event was remarkable. It proves that just because you have some success, there is always room for improvement to get better.

Center Director Coach Art Blevins said, "It was a great clinic, and I have to thank William, his Ram teammates Wykevin and Javan, and William's brother Antwain and friend Cedric for coming out and making this event a success and giving back to the kids."

Blevins gave high praise for William and the work that he is doing at Hanes Hosiery, saying, "William is a great young man that I am extremely proud of, and it is a pleasure to have him here with me."

Late mistakes cost Rams in loss to Lenoir-Rhyne

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

The Winston-Salem State University Rams faltered late and could not hold off the Lenoir-Rhyne Bears, and fell 14-11 on Tuesday evening, March 24, at BB&T Ballpark in downtown Winston-Salem.

With the loss, Winston-Salem State falls to 22-7, while Lenoir-Rhyne improves to 20-12 on the season.

The Lenoir-Rhyne Bears wasted no time in breaking into the scoring column, as they were able to get to the Rams pitching early and scored two runs in the first and two in the second to go ahead 4-0.

WSSU fought back, and in the bottom of the second inning got one run back, when Nathan Steger tripled to right field scoring Connor Andrus to cut the lead to 4-1.

The Bears would answer with three runs in the fourth inning to lead, 7-1, and it looked as if they would run away with the game.

But Winston-Salem State would come back with a big sixth inning, where they would plate six runs on six hits, to tie the game at 7-7.

Connor Andrus homered to start the inning, followed by a Jacob Barber double. After a Nathan Steger single, and Alex Grubb was hit by a pitch, Colby Keene singled, bringing in Chris Kane, who was pinch running for Barber. Des Roberts would double down the left field line, clearing the bases and Dylan Dombrowskas doubled down the left field line to score Des Roberts.

Lenoir-Rhyne was not done, and scored a run in the top half of the fifth inning, to surge ahead 8-7.

The Rams once again had an answer in the bottom of the sixth, as Dylan Dombrowskas doubled to right field allowing Des Roberts to score, and Dombrowskas would eventually score on a wild pitch to give the Rams a 9-8 lead.

Once again the Bears would fight back, and would score a run in the top of the seventh inning to tie the game at 9-9.

In the bottom of the eighth inning, WSSU would plate two more runs, and looked to salt the game away. Connor Andrus and Chris Kane would pick up RBI's and WSSU would take a 11-9 lead in the final frame.

But two big errors by WSSU infielders, coupled with three hits, doomed the Rams as Lenoir-Rhyne would score five runs to take a 14-11 lead.

Winston-Salem State would go down 1-2-3 in the bottom of the ninth, to fall to the Lenoir-Rhyne Bears, 14-11.

Devin McLemore took the loss for the WSSU, after surrendering three hits, three runs and a walk in the ninth. Only one run was earned, however. Eric Corlett started for WSSU and went four innings, allowing seven runs on six hits with four strikeouts, and Hayden O'Neal went 0.2 inning allowing one run, walking two and strikeout. Tyler Scearce went 1.1 innings, and allowed one hit, one run with two walks and a strikeout, and Jordan Cummings went 2.0 innings, and gave up two runs on two hits with a walk and two strikeouts.

Des Roberts led the Rams at the plate, going three for five with three runs scored and three runs batted in, including a double, while Connor Andrus went two for four with two runs scored and two runs batted in. Dylan Dombrowskas also finished two for four with one run scored and two runs batted in. Nathan Steger went two for five with one run scored and one run batted in, and Colby Keene went one for five with one run scored and one RBI.

Chris Kane went one for two with a run scored and one run batted in. Jacob Barber finished one for two, while Gavin Culler scored one run.
