Full homes. Empty streets.

Photos by Tevin Stinson

What are usually some of the busiest streets in the city resembled a ghost town earlier this week after Stay-At-Home orders were mandated by Mayor Allen Joines and Governor Roy Cooper. The Stay-At-Home order went into effect statewide on Monday, March 30. (See full story on A2)

WHEN YOU'RE ON YOUR OWN, WE ARE THERE WITH YOU.

As the United States faces the worst public health crisis in a generation, we want you to know we are here for you — and with you.

Whatever happens, whenever it happens, The Chronicle will be there for you. We'll be there to let you know how our community is managing through this crisis — from business to government to the health care system and schools, to the drastic impact on individuals and families.

And we'll be there to let you know about the good and extraordinary things happening in the midst of this crisis — citizens and nonprofit workers attending to the homeless community, the volunteers bringing food to elderly people who cannot leave their homes, the healthcare workers putting themselves in harm's way to care for the sick.

Amidst the sadness and anxiety, there are uplifting moments that remind us of the resilience of the human spirit, and we'll be there to document those too.

We are here to help you make sense of the situation and to help you navigate it.

Having fact-based, reliable reporting that provides public scrutiny and oversight is more important than ever. Together, across the decades, this newspaper and its readers have navigated horrific events — natural disasters, terrorism, financial downturns, periods of extreme political and societal division.

This challenge is greater than any of those, but, rest assured, we'll be here for you. Let's stick together, and we will come through this, too.
