Blinn's hour was found about the chief executive without state lines being taken into consideration. , Eliminate Electoral College

The proposal now is to eliminate the electoral college and retain the electoral vote of the states for president and vice-president, so that each state would have the same voice in deciding the presi-dential contest as at present. That is the provision of the Norris resolution proposing to amend the conattitution, which was recently re-ported favorably to the Senate from the committee on agriculture.
