have been anxious for American cooperation in grappling with the reparations proposition. They long have seen in it the thorn in the side of final adjudication of the war. Great Britain and France, or course, cordially share the Harding administration's view that economically the United States, as well as in every other country that was at war between 1914 and 1918, are inter-related-that the woeful after-math of war knows no frontiers, but has overswept them all.

If President Harding invites the leading allied governments to assemble in Washington to discuss pressing and immediate aspects of war liquidation it seems likely all co-related questions will come up. Live Longer, Live Better

If the digestive organs are kept in perfect working order, then there is seldom complaint about any other part of the human body performing its proper functions.

If we go to the table hungry, find the food apprizing, eat satisfyingly but not too bounteously we find ourselves always in a cheerful state of mind ready and willing to perform life's duties from day to

As an aid to longevity and a constant source of pleasure to those so fortunate as to possess one in the home, may we call your attention, please, to a Hudson Syphon Refrigerator? Food cannot spoil in this refrigerator for the following reasons:

There are eleven Thicknesses used in the construction of the walls forming such perfect insulation as to give a surprisingly low temperature and a minimum consumption of ice. The Hudson Circulating System brings the air into constant and immediate contact with the ice and, a low degree of temperature having once been obtained, the heavily insulated walls hold it.

The provision chambers are one piece pure white porcelain lined, with all rounded corners. You can not possibly imagine a food receptacle more cleanly or sanitary. Milk and butter may be kept in the same refrigerator-yes, even on the same shelves-with onions, pineapple or cantaloupes, and the odors never mix.

If we were to continue to write and you continue toread, the Sentinel could use several pages in describing the many good features about Hudson refrigerators, all of which are carried by this store, but we are not selling goods by mail. The refrigerators are here for you to see and have demonstrated to your entire satisfaction. See them. Get one, It may add a score of years to your life.
