

U. S. MARINES ARE RUSHED TO PEKING

Will Protect American Legation During Fighting Between Rival Chinese Factions

Peking, April 27.—(By The Associated Press).—Measures for the protection of American and other foreign interests here have been expedited in view of the threatened hostilities between forces of General Chang Tso-Lin and Wu-Peh-Fu.

Train service to the coast has not been suspended, but is irregular, and the legations are prepared to order repairs of the railroad to keep it in operation should serious interference develop. Thus far nothing but precautionary action has been taken, but it is stated that an allied fleet will land troops, if necessary, to keep communications open between Peking and the sea, in compliance with the protocol of 1901.

One hundred and seventy-five bluejackets and marines are expected to arrive today to reinforce the guards of the American legation. The men are from the United States cruiser Albany, which was ordered north from Shanghai, and tents have been erected for them in the American compound in the legation quarters.

The Albany will join the Huron flag of the United States Asiatic fleet, off Chinwangtao, northeast of Tientsin.

The British and French legations also have requested that warships be sent to Chinese waters.

The military activities of the opposing generals continue. Wu has concentrated 25,000 men at Paotungfu, the capital of Chih province, and Chang has 20,000 soldiers along the railroad from Peking to the sea.

BANKERS HEAR ABOUT THE CO-OPERATIVE PLAN

Pinehurst, N. C., April 27.—Addressed by George Seay, governor of the Richmond federal reserve bank, and Oliver J. Sands, who was recently named general manager of the Virginia-Carolina Tobacco Growers Association, featured the second day's meeting of the North Carolina Bankers' Association in session here.

The Federal Reserve System was the subject of Mr. Seay's address and Mr. Sands spoke on "Co-operative Marketing."

Four jurors in small trial, Waukegan, Ill., April 27.—With four jurors for the trial of Governor Len Small selected and sworn in a new venire of 100 was called for today but 62 could be found and Judge Claire C. Edwards excused 25 others for various reasons.

The state resumed questioning of prospective jurors.

GERMANY AND RUSSIA TO RESUME RELATIONS

London, April 27.—Diplomatic relations between Germany and Russia will be resumed immediately in accordance with the treaty signed at Rapallo, says a Central News dispatch from Berlin.

The first German ambassador to the Soviet government will be Professor Windenfeld, while Leonid Krassin will represent Russia in Berlin.

DR. J. W. LONG NEW PRESIDENT STATE MEDICAL SOCIETY

held in Asheville. A most urgent invitation came from the mountain city.

New President's Record. The new president is well known among the members of the society, especially because of his splendid record in the late war.

Volunteering before war with Germany was declared, Dr. Long served in the Medical Corps of the army for nearly three years. He was detailed to many important duties, among them being the organization of a Red Cross ambulance unit, consisting of 105 officers and enlisted men, none of which were in the service at that time. This unit served thruout the entire war and was on the Verdun front when the armistice was signed.

Later Dr. Long was instrumental in organizing a base hospital consisting of three hundred and thirty-four officers enlisted men and nurses. None of this personnel was in the service at the time they volunteered with this unit. The hospital designated No. 65, was mobilized at Fort McPherson and later located at Kerohon near Brest, France. This unit performed most important and distinguished service while with the A. E. F. More than 40,000 sick and wounded men came under the care of this hospital.

Error in his service with Base Hospital No. 65 Dr. Long served as medical aide to the governor. This was an appointment from the provost marshal general's office. The duties of this office involved the organization and supervision of the medical advisory boards thruout the entire state.

When Dr. Long was sent abroad as chief of the surgical service with Base Hospital No. 65, the duties of surgeon to the Kerohon centre were added. While with the A. E. F. he was sent on detached service to a number of other hospitals and was under the sound of the big guns on that historic day—November 11.

On being returned to the states, he was sent to Camp Gordon to take charge of the reconstruction surgery of that unit. By virtue of his rank, he was made the commanding officer.

Nearly five hundred medical officers from North Carolina were examined and recommended for commission in the service thru the office of Dr. Long.

ant for about a year, the rank of major for a year, and that of lieutenant-colonel for nearly a year.

Completing active service following reconstruction, Dr. Long returned to Greensboro where he has resumed his practice in civil life, conducting a successful hospitalization plant at Greensboro. He is widely known in this and adjoining states, and has for many years been an active supporter of the State Society. Splendid progress is expected to be the result of his work during the coming months.

Dr. Royster Speaks
Dr. Hubert A. Royster, retiring president of the society, in making the report of the house of delegates, stated that if he had had the opportunity to choose his successor he could not have been suited better.

He described the new president, Dr. Long, as a Zacheus in stature and a Goliath in intellect—a man who will keep the Medical Society of North Carolina in the forefront of progress.

Dr. Royster requested Doctors Lockett and Fletcher to escort the new president to the chair.

After a most enthusiastic applause, Dr. Long accepted the honor conferred upon him in the following words:

"If you have any faith in me, believe me when I say that I did not want to be president of the North Carolina Medical Society. I had no ambitions whatever to hold the office. I was just as happy as a low private in the rear ranks as I expect to be as the official head of the profession in North Carolina. That may sound strange and some of you may not believe it, but it is true nevertheless.

"At the same time I recognize the fact that election to the presidency of this society is the greatest honor that can come to any physician at the hands of his fellows. And no man in his right senses could fail to appreciate profoundly such an expression of confidence from such an organization as the North Carolina Medical Society.

"I have received similar honors from other scientific bodies which, measured by certain standards, might be considered more famous than any state society; but nothing has ever come to me that has made me more deeply than this action of your part of the profession and neighbors, who know my many faults as well as my few virtues, some of you have known me since the ink was still wet upon my first diploma and I am more or less conversant with the activities of your organization, the organized medicine and to keep unblemished the fair name of our profession.

"In electing me as your president you have done for me the most that you could possibly do, and I would be less than a man if I did not respond to your magnificent action with the very best service of which I am capable. Indeed, I have realized the value of your confidence and esteem that determines me to accept the onerous duties that go with the exalted position of president of the North Carolina State Medical Society.

"Many of you will recall that in 1917 I delivered before this body an illustrated address on the early history of the North Carolina Medical Society. In that address I reviewed the developments of the society from its inception; in fact, I unearthed the history of a former state medical society organized in 1789, fifty years before our present organization. By the way I am pleased to see that since that lecture in 1917 the transactions of our society has carried a synopsis of that earlier society in the front of each volume. In my studies I especially emphasized the part our present organization played in the great drama of the history of organized medicine. I knew some of them personally, since quite a few of them were spared till after I entered the medical arena in 1883, therefore, it was to me at least, from first-hand knowledge.

"Now, when I review that long line of intellectual giants and meditate upon the things they did and stood for, I feel like exclaiming with Elijah when he sat down under the juniper tree, 'Oh, Lord, take away my life, for I am not better than my fathers.'

Therefore, my brethren, pray I shall need and earnestly pray for your most loyal support, that together we may make the next twelve months the record year in our history. If only the mantle of our fathers might fall upon my feeble shoulders for this one year! If I may have the blessing of our presidents who are still with us in the flesh, including the last one, who I am proud to claim as one of my own professional sons, I shall go forward with every confidence of success. And let me assure you, that having put my hand to the plow, I shall not turn back. And I hereby pledge to you, who have so signally honored me, the very best that is within me.

"Listen, some of us may have entertained different views as to policies, interests, personal opinions, estimates of one another's personal equation even, but in the interest of our dear old Medical Society could we not forget all this for the time being and putting our shoulders to the wheel pull together for the good of the profession as a whole? I declare to you that I come into this responsible position with malice toward no one, but an earnest desire to serve every one alike, in the true spirit of democracy!

"What possibilities lie before us! Look at this body of men. Many of them, their heads tinged with grey, their countenances stamped with the wisdom of experience and godliness.

great heart," was let us have peace.

"Undoubtedly the task of reconstruction was lightened because of Grant's moderation."

"Many years later when his life was ebbing, and he struggled to the end of his memoirs, all the American people knew of his brave fight and the inevitable outcome and the man of magnanimity found himself the recipient of a genuinely nationwide sympathy."

"He saw union follow disunion, but it was not his to live to see complete concord where discord had flourished. I wish he somehow might know that in the more than a third of a century since his one and only surrender, the indissoluble ties of union have been more firmly riveted, and in the shared burdens and triumphs of American progress we have indeed continued in peace at home. Geographical sectionalism is only a memory now and Mason and Dixon's remains only a historical record, where an ambiguity in the federal constitution was wiped out and the nation resumed the onward march of its destined way.

"Seemingly it was a long time in which to re-establish a concord so manifestly essential to the nation's greater achievements, but the understanding of the magnificent Lee was not universal thruout the South, the magnanimity of Grant was not manifested thruout the North. Wounds had to be healed and partisan politics temporarily profited more irritation than healing, but the war with Spain consecrated North and South to a common cause, and the sacrifice and nationwide service in the world war revealed the common American soul. Grant, the great nationalist, who approached union and nationality above all the frightful cost and suffering, would rejoice to acclaim the republic of today.

"I do not mean to say that everywhere in our land we are all in complete accord about fundamentals of government or the basic principles of nationality which society is founded. But the sectionalism of Grant's and Lee's time has been effaced, and the geographical divisions which hindered the formation of the union and later threatened its disruption have given way to the far less menacing divisions which have challenged all civilization and which make the ferment out of which all progress comes. We are today incontrovertibly one people, with a common purpose, universal pride, nationwide confidence and one flag. The contentions which beset us are not ours alone, they are the irritants which threaten the world. They will not hinder the human race from firmly founded republicanism.

Resolution of Appreciation.
Dr. Thomas Anderson, of Statesville, asked that the society express in a resolution its appreciation for the most cordial reception given by the Winston-Salem people, particularly the members of the local medical society. He declared that it was one of the most successful sessions he had ever attended.

Last Night's Session.
The session last night was featured by three splendid addresses by physicians of a wide reputation.

Dr. Frank Billings, of Chicago, resident trustee of the American Medical Association, and one of the leading medical authorities in the country, delivered an able and interesting address on "The Policies of the American Medical Association, Past, Present and Future."

Dr. Thomas McCrae, well known physician of Philadelphia, made an able address on "Some of the Problems of Internal Secretions," which was heard with marked attention, as was also the highly technical paper read by Dr. LeGrand Guerry, of Columbia, S. C., in which that authority on the subject discussed hyperthyroidism and its treatment in the Light of Our Newer Knowledge." At the close of his address Dr. Guerry threw on the screen a number of pictures graphically illustrating his theme.

Money Back If "Gets-It" Fails

Nothing is so utterly useless as the suffering from itching, painful corns. It is as easy to peel off a corn as to skin a banana. Touch it with "Gets-It" and the trick is done, or has corns, soft corns, any corn-or callus. All pain stops instantly and the corn proceeds to loosen and soon can be lifted right off.

Your money cheerfully refunded if it fails. But it never fails. Costs but a trifle. E. Lawrence & Co., Mrs. Chicago.

To free your skin from blemishes — the right way

ASK a skin specialist why it is that your skin is continually breaking out with disfiguring little blemishes. He will almost certainly tell you that this condition comes from an outside infection.

Authorities on the skin now say that skin blemishes are generally caused by bacteria and parasites which are carried into the pores from outside, through the dust and soot in the air. By the following simple treatment, you can gradually but thoroughly free your skin from blemishes:

EACH night just before retiring, wash your face with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water, finishing with a dash of cold water, and dry carefully.

Now dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy, creamlike lather.

Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes.

Rinse your face thoroughly, first with clear water, then with cold.

Supplement this treatment with the regular use of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your daily toilet, to keep the new skin which is constantly forming free from blemishes.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake will last for a month or six weeks of this treatment and for general cleansing use. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York, and Perth, Ontario.
