Editorial Writers Advance Diversified Opinions As To The Turn-Over

SOME SAY "PROHI" CAUSE

Others Place Republican Defeat To Tariff, While Others Interpret The Voting As Revealing a Widespread Dissatisfaction With The Harding Administration

London, Nov. 9-(By The Associated Press)-The come-back made by the Democrats in the American elections last Tuesday is explained to British readers by their newspapers in many ways, and the speculation in which the editorial writers indulge is quite diversined. Some indulge is quite diversined. Some think the pendulum merely swung back, but others interpret the voting as revealing widespread dissatisfaction with the Harding administration and many of its works, including the table and the enforcement of prohibition.

Thruout England the American elections have attracted more editorial comment than is often the case.

torial comment than is often the case.

The Times pays a tribute to the Harding administration as one which has achieved successes of which America may well be proud, "notably in its eminently skillful handling of the great international convention at Washington last fall."

The Chronicle regards the Democratic victory as significant, and ascribes the change as partly the result of a natural swing of the pendulum, partly to the "excessive application of prohibition and partly to the dissatisfaction with the supremacy of big business interests and the tariff." The new strength of the Democratic party will sure-

But Allies Refuse To Do So

London, Nov. 8-(By the Associated Press)-Both the eager British public and the government were in the dark today regarding the grave situation in Constantinople, the lack of information being the result of the cutting of the cable near Chanak by the Turks, who are refusing to allow the cable company to repair its lines.

Government officials today were asking newspaper correspondents for news.

It was said at the foreign offices that the only thing that could be done was to await a report as to whether martial law had been declared in Constantinople. Complete discretionary powers in this regard are in the hands of the allied authorities

Paris, Nov. 9-The troubled state f affairs in Constantinople may not be getting any worse, but there certainly seems to be no improvement in good feeling between the Kemailats and allied commissioners.

Two British soldiers were assassinated last night at Kasimpaha, according to the Constantinople correspondent of the Petet Parisien. respondent of the Petet Parisien, Coi.
