THE AMERICAN FLAG. When Freedom from her mountain height Unfurled her Standard to the air, She tore the azure robe of night, And set the stars of glory there! She mingled with its gorgeous dies The milky baldric of the skies, And striped its pure celestial white, With streakings from the morning light! Then, from his mansion in the sun, She called her eagle bearer down, And gave into his mighty hand The symbol of her chosen land !

Majestic monarch of the cloud! Who rear'st aloft thy regal form, To hear the tempest trumping loud, And see the lightning lances driven, When strides the warrior of the storm, And rolls the thunder-drum of heaven! Child of the sun ! to thec 'tis given

To guard the banner of the free—
To hover in the sulphur smoke,
To ward away the battle-stroke,
And bid its blendings shine afar, Like rainbow on the cloud of war The harbinger of victory !

Flag of the brave! thy folds shall fly, The sign of hope and triumph high! When speaks the signal trumpet's tone, And the long line comes gleaming on, Ere yet the life-blood, warm and wet, Has dimmed the glistening bayonet,-Each soldier's eye shall brightly turn To where thy meteor glories burn, And as his springing steps advance, Catch war and vengeance from the glance! And when the cannon's mouthings loud, Heave in wild wreaths the battle shroud, And gory sabres rise and fall, Like shoots of flame on midnight's pall ! There shall thy victor glances glow, And cowering foes shall sink beneath Each gallant arm that strikes below

Flag of the seas! on Ocean's wave, Thy stars shall glitter o'er the brave, When Death careering on the gale, Bweeps darkly round the bellied sail. And frighted waves rush wildly back Before the broadside's reeling rack, The dving wanderer of the sea Shall look at once to heaven and thee, And smile to see thy splendors fly, In triumph o'er the closing eye.

That lovely messenger of death!

I'lag of the free-heart's only home, By angel hands to valor given! Thy stars have lit the welkin dome, And all thy hues were born in heaven! For ever float that standard sheet! Where breathes the foc but falls before us, With Freedom's soil beneath our feet, And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us! -600-

A dickey and a quiz, A pair of goggles and a negro's friz; A dandy coat and a tremendous collar, A greasy pocket and half a dollar, A plaited bosom studded thick with glass A forehead plaited with a coat of brass; A scarlet nose, a long nine and a squirt, A flashy vest and may-be half a shirt; A pompous tone, a reverential bow. A snow-white hand, a straddle like a cow; A squeaking voice, a teacup full of paint, A codfish's eye and visage of a saint; A pair of whiskers stolen from a gout, A pewter watch and a seal scarce worth a groat A pocket comb, a pair of random hose, A pair of seal-skin slippers black as sloes, A peaked hat with scarcely any brim, A spindle shank and body wondrous slim; A pair of check tights tighter than the skin, A pewter broach and watch chain made of tin

THE MOTH AND THE KING .- A young king about to take possession of his throne while musing one night in his study, beheld a pretty moth flying round one of 77-1f.

A servile ape, a pretty woman's tool,

A stupid dunce, a despicable fool.

'Silly fly,' he said, 'back, back-it dazzles but to burn'-and he put it away it flew around the flame; and each time nearer and nearer.

'Senseless dunce,' said the prince, thou deservest thy destiny-die the victim of blindness and infatuation; thou mightest have lived and been happy.'

Years went by—the young prince grew 50 CASKS assorted NAILS, to a stately monarch—but the lives of Kings are seldom peaceful, and long before the curls which fell from his ample brow were touched by the snows of time, he stood at the block to yield his head to the fierce rage of an indignant and merciless people. He remembered the incident of past years, for his heart misgave him then that it might be an omen.

'And is it even thus, then,' he saidhave all the splendors of royalty; all the pride of humanity, all the labor of science left me but on a level with the despised moth? Nay, a more rational end was his. It is a fact not commonly known that guineas, which have now for nearly 20 years ceased to form part of the circulation, still exist in the hoards of private individuals to a very large amount, as may be inferred from the circumstance that from 3000 to 4000 are on the average fect state. The inference is, that they were originally laid by during the distrust and apprehension excited by the bank restriction, and are now brought out again by a greater degree of confi-dence in the government, or perhaps, in easily removed, by the death or testamen-tary disposition of the individuals con-tary disposition of the individuals consome instances, for such distrusts are not cerned. It is estimated by good judges that at the period of the bank restriction there existed gold in the country to the amount of 30,000,000l. nearly all of which disappeared from circulation, so that the tide above described may continue to flow for a very long time to come. The fact is more worth notice at this time, since it is one of the causes among many others now in progress, of the great circulation. English Paper.

Anecdote. - There lived, somewhere in the land of steady habits, a Parson Strong and a Doctor Bacon. The parson was found of a joke, and so was the doctor .-Passing one day beside a load of dead hogs, said Doctor Bacon to Parson Strong, as he tapped the head of one of the porkers with his cane—'Why is it, Mr. Strong, that this part of the hog is called MIN-ISTER'S FACE?

'For the same reason, I suppose,' retorted the parson, that the other end is called BACON.'-N. Y. Transcript.
