TALK CONTROL OF TOBACCO

Conferees At Raleigh Not Disclosing Details Of Discussion

RALEIGH, July 29.—(UP)—Several leading plans for control of flue-cured tobacco production were discussed here yesterday by a score of representative growers and Chester C. Davis, of Washington, production director of the agricultural adjustment administration.

The conference was held behind closed doors and conferees refused to reveal details of the discussions.

Davis, accompanied by J. B. Hutson, director of the tobacco section of the administration, came here from Washington to discuss possible inauguration of the production control plan.

The meeting was held in the office of Dean I. O. Schaub, North Carolina State College extension director who spent nine days in Washington in conference with federal officials on a proposed acreage abandonment campaign.

Meanwhile, Hutson addressed the American Institute of Co-operation and the annual convention of the North Carolina Farmers and Farm Women's Association on "Application of the agricultural adjustment act to tobacco co-operation."

He discussed three plans for controlling the price of the flue-cured product. They were: Promise of manufacturers to buy all tobacco produced, limited production and payment of acreage restriction.

"Don't expect us to sit in Washington, devise a plan and say 'here it is,'" he said, in stressing the necessity of co-operation among the tobacco farmers.

Hutson revealed that 40 per cent of the growers of cigar leaf (Continued on page three)

STANDARD OIL MAN RESIGNS $100,000 JOB TO TAKE POST WITH U. S. RECOVERY GROUP

Said To Have Been Told He Could Not Serve The Administration And Hold Place With Corporation

WASHINGTON, July 29. (UP)—James A. Moffett resigned yesterday as vice-president and a member of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. His resignation was accepted.

Moffett's action was the result of a difference with Walter C. Teagle, president of the huge company. Teagle, it was understood, refused to countenance his subordinate's acceptance of a position with an advisory committee of the National Recovery Administration.

Both are in Washington in connection with hearings on the embattled oil industry code. The announcement of Moffett's resignation first was made by Teagle in a short statement by his secretary. It mentioned no reasons for the action. It was learned, however, that the Standard Oil president told Moffett he must refuse appointment as an adviser to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery administrator, or hand in his resignation.

In a statement announcing acceptance of his resignation, Moffett said he took the position that the offer to serve on the advisory committee as "the equivalent of a command" from President Roosevelt.

"I have been a life-long Democrat," he said, "a supporter of the president, and am in accord with the president's program and policies. My views as to the policies to be pursued apparently are not in accord with those of the board of the New Jersey company."

"While I regret to sever a connection of 28 years with the company with which my father before was associated for 43 years, I felt there would be only one alternative for me and that was to accept the appointment tendered."

The position Moffett resigned reportedly carries a salary of $100,000 annually.

ROOSEVELT IS AT HYDE PARK

Returns Home To Work And Fraternize With Old Neighbors

HYDE PARK, N. Y., July 29. (UP)—President Roosevelt came back home today for a month of work and play among his old neighbors of Dutchess county.

The special train bearing him to the familiar scenes of boyhood days, pulled into the little station here at 9 a. m., after a leisurely trip from Washington that began last night.

The "old neighbors" as the president affectionately terms them were out in force to bid him welcome. Long before the train arrived they had gathered from all sections of the countryside.

Returning to historic Krum Elbow, the family home overlooking the Hudson, for the first time since he left it to enter the White House, Mr. Roosevelt had the added joy of a reunion with his mother, who came from Campobello, N. B., for the occasion.

The president, who breakfasted in his private car with Mrs. Roosevelt and members of the party, was given a rousing cheer as he appeared on the rear platform to see the flag bedecked Hyde Park village and to board the automobile waiting to carry him the five miles to Krum Elbow.

He and Mrs. Roosevelt were smiling broadly as they responded to the cheers, the president waving affectionately to the group in which were friends he has known all his life.

CARRIES OUT PROMISE.—In returning to Hyde Park Mr. Roosevelt was carrying out a promise he made to the townsfolk when he said goodbye last March. He told them at that time that he would come back to establish the summer White House in their midst.

The presidential party was driven immediately from the state escorted by a motorcycle detail of state troopers who will remain on duty at the home as long as the president remains.

CIRCUMVERTING THE RECOVERY ACT CHARGED

WASHINGTON, July 29. (UP)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, yesterday invited government action to bring peace to the Fayette county, Pennsylvania, coal fields where four striking miners already have been shot.

In a letter to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Lewis charged that on June 1st when it became apparent that the Recovery Act would be passed by congress, the H. C. Frick Coke company, hastened to form a company union.

The miners, Lewis explained, disregarded this effort and instead became affiliated with the United Mine Workers after adoption of the Recovery Act. Since then, the letter said, officials of the Frick Co., "sought to create conditions of resentment among their employes which would justify their discharge for other than the illegal reason of being members of the United Mine Workers."

A strike followed. Lewis said company officials had declined his offer to meet in Fayette county with them and attempt to bring peace. On July 27, he charged, four miners were shot down by alleged agents of the company.

The mine workers' head invited Madame Secretary Perkins to check his facts as outlined in the latter and added:

"We respectfully invite any official action upon the part of your department calculated to remove these abuses and insure peace in this disturbed area."

Flying Machine Without Wings Or Propeller Big Aviation Advance

BERLIN, July 29. (UP)—Adolph Rohrbach, famous German aviation designer, disclosed last night some of the secrets of a unique new airplane which he said would fly forward, backward, hover motionless or rise and descend almost vertically.

Rohrbach calls the new craft a "unlaufflugel flugzeug." It has no propeller. It was no wings. It resembles a flying reaping machine. Its designer expects it to solve some of modern aviation's most perplexing problems, extending the benefits of the auto-gyro type.

Locomotion and lifting power are provided by the revolving contraptions which sprout from the fuselage of the plane at the point which other airplanes have wings. These contraptions are six, blade-like horizontal fins, three on each side, which revolve in a circle around two axial bars connected with the motor, which is inside the plane.

NEW JOBS ARE CREATED PAST WEEK BY CODE

Wage Section Of N.R.A. Is Interpreted As Mandatory

COLLECTIVE BARGAIN PACTS NOT AFFECTED

(Copyright by United Press)

At least half a million men will go back to work Monday to new jobs created by President Roosevelt's NRA code, the United Press revealed today through a nation-wide inquiry.

A check of two score major American industrial centers showed that thousands of new jobs had been opened up in the past few days with hundreds of thousands in prospect for next week.

By THOMAS L. STOKES, United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 29. (UP)—The National Recovery Administration held last night that employers, in order to receive the "blue eagle" of NRA, must conform with wage provisions of the code, even though this may require adjustment of existing labor contracts.

The hour schedules under the voluntary agreement must be maintained and an "equitable readjustment" of wages made, on the basis of shortened hours with consideration of circumstances and conditions. There is no fixed rule for adjustments under contracts.

This important section relates to an interpretation of the now famous "section 7" of the code which requires that compensation of employes above the minimum wage group shall not be reduced, even though hours are reduced, and that "equitable readjustments" shall be made to increase wage scales above the minimum.

The recovery administration, however, leaves to the discretion of the employer whether he will adjust these contracts. Its ruling merely holds that the adjustments must be made by those employers who expect to participate fully in the blanket code. Union labor contracts which affect between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 workers are not mentioned by name in the interpretation.

Donald Richberg, counsel of NRA who superintended drafting of the interpretation, when pressed upon this point, gave his own personal opinion, as follows:

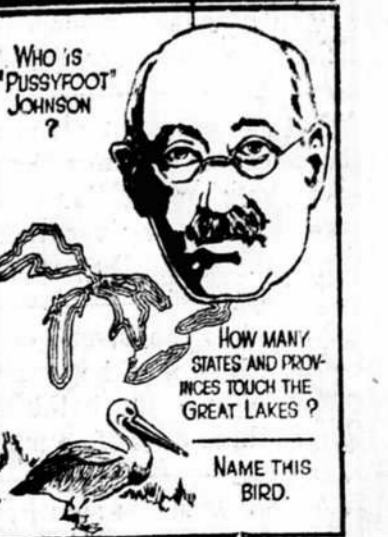

"It is not the purpose of this agreement to interfere with maintenance of contracts entered into by exercise of collective bargaining. It does not force the breaking of contracts.

"No contracts are affected by the agreement. If the employer can't adjust his contract, then he can't sign the agreement. The agreement neither authorizes or requires the breaking of contracts. But the employer can not get the blue eagle until and unless he complies."

He added that public opinion and the influence of labor unions are factors that will be powerful in this situation.

The interpretation of the blanket code, which touched upon other matters than "section 7" was issued last night, after two days of (Continued on page 3.)
