BY FREDERICK A. STORM United Press Staff Correspondent

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 30.—(UP)—President Roosevelt observed Thanksgiving surrounded by little paralysis sufferers here whom he proudly calls his neighbors and friends.

The chief executive, thrusting aside even the most important of administrative cares, devoted his time entirely to the colony of patients and Warm Springs Foundation, which in a brief address he extolled as "the example of the right way of giving help."

At night, with Mrs. Roosevelt, the President presided at the annual Thanksgiving dinner in Georgia Hall, carving generously from a 40-pound turkey that had been specially prepared with all the trimmings. Seated at his table were a dozen or more youngsters who drew lots for the privilege of being with him.

In the group was Jas. A. Moffett, federal housing administrator, who remained over to confer with the President today on details of the gigantic housing program which is one of the key movements of the government toward orderly economic and social recovery.

Over the week-end and early next week the President was slated to swing into a discussion of the broad relief picture as well as phases of his 1935 legislative program that yet remain to be decided upon.

He will take up relief with Harry Hopkins, FERA head. Other callers will be Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of Interior Harold I. Ickes, Frank Walker, former director of the National Emergency Council, and Postmaster General James A. Farley.

The President will leave the Little White House Wednesday for Washington, arriving Thursday morning. On arrival he will proceed to the new executive offices that have been completed in his absence.

During the afternoon yesterday the President participated in the dedication of two new Foundation buildings, accepting them formally from the board of trustees.

"These buildings," he said, "represent more than bricks and mortar. Into their construction has gone the human qualities of sympathy and understanding of thousands of people—our own neighbors of the State of Georgia and many others in every part of the nation who have understood the vision."

"To these buildings will come, we hope for many generations, people—especially children—who

2 Local Churches To Begin Vesper Services Sunday

Two of the local churches, the First Methodist and the Presbyterian, will on this Sunday, Dec. 2, begin having a 5 o'clock vesper service in place of the 7:30 o'clock evening service, this program to continue through the winter months.

This was done by these two churches last year with gratifying success. "This hour," it was said, "seems to suit many who do not wish to go out winter evenings, those who wish to spend the evening at home with the family, and others. It comes at the close of the day, which is a time of quietness and peace, and at a time when most people are tired of doing other things and will find it a welcome diversion, especially spiritual, to go to the house of God for worship. The vesper service has become quite popular everywhere and is being quite generally adopted."

FOUL PLAY HINTED; FUNERAL SUNDAY

James Donald Maxwell, 32, on the Dana road, was found dead from a pistol shot through the right temple in a cabin at a tourist camp on the Greenville-Spartanburg highway between Greer and Chick Springs at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A .38 calibre pistol was found nearby.

The body was found by James J. Pace, uncle of Maxwell, who had gone in search of his nephew. Mr. Pace saw the car at the tourist camp and stopped to look for Maxwell. He was told that the man arrived there about 2 o'clock and rented a cabin for a few hours sleep.

Attendants at the camp said that Maxwell ate lunch there, and that no shot had been heard. Foul play was at first suspected, it was reported.

Maxwell left Hendersonville on Tuesday to go to South Carolina to buy hides and furs, according to friends. He had, they said, about $100 when he left home. Friends found that he had spent $20 in one place, and there was only about six dollars on his person when the body was discovered.

Coroner George W. McCoy, of Greenville county, said he would hold an inquest early next week. Men from the Greenville sheriff's office made a preliminary investigation with the coroner. The body is expected to be brought here this afternoon by J. M. Stepp & Son. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday at Refuge church, with the Rev. M. L. Lewis in charge. Burial will take place in Refuge cemetery.

Maxwell is survived by his widow, Mrs. Gladys Blythe Maxwell, three daughters, Jimmy, Sarah and Mickle, his mother, Mrs. Hester Fletcher, and two sisters, Mrs. Lewis Laughter, of Hendersonville and Mrs. Carl Naile, of Salisbury.

FIVE INVOLVED IN EASTERN MYSTERY BELIEVED NOW TO BE ROSEDALE, CAL., FAMILY

ROSEVILLE, Cal., Nov. 30. (UP)—Identification of the five persons involved in Pennsylvania's "Babes in the Woods" mystery appeared possible today as authorities checked information indicating that Elmo J. Noakes, 31, his three young daughters and niece were those who died in the strange case.

Officials descriptions of the man's body found at Duncansville tallied with that of Noakes, with the exception of a discrepancy in height.

Noakes, his three blonde daughters, aged 8, 10 and 12 years, respectively, and his 18-year-old niece, Winnie Pierce, have been missing from Roseville approximately three weeks.

Noakes purchased a 1929 Pontiac sedan November 10 from William Sutton, local automobile dealer. A salesman, Roy Scott, said that Noakes indicated he "was going on a trip" but did not say where. The same day Noakes was said to have disappeared from Rosedale.

Mrs. J. C. Gibby, sister of Noakes, described him as 31 years old, with blue eyes and brown hair, weighing 150 pounds and five feet six inches tall. The official description of the man's body found at Duncansville, Pa., gave the age as between 30 and 35; height five feet 10 inches; weight 140; blue eyes and dark brown hair.

Mrs. Gibby added that Noakes wore special glasses such as those described for the man, also. The engine and serial numbers of the machine purchased by Noakes tallied with those of the automobile and man and woman found in Pennsylvania were said to have been driving.

School authorities said the Noakes children had been missing from school about three weeks. The mother of the children died recently. Noakes' niece disappeared about November 16, when her mother, Mrs. Pearl Pierce, reported to police that she was missing. The girl had acted as housekeeper for Noakes.

A brother of the missing girl, Russell Pierce, said that he talked with her the morning on November 11. She gave no indication that she planned to leave Roseville at the time, and seemed in good spirits and health, Russell said.

Winifred was described as 18 years old, five feet four inches tall, blonde, and weighing about 120.

The names of the Noakes children were given as Cordelia, Devilla and Norma, aged 8, 10 and 12 respectively. Noakes had no police record in local courts. He was employed as a helper by the Pacific Fruit Express, earning approximately $100 per month. It was said that he failed to draw a check for two weeks' pay, due him November 10.

Relatives of the missing man and girl were unable to assign any reason for their travelling to Pennsylvania. No pictures of the children, man or girl were said to be available in Roseville. Authorities planned to check photographs. (Continued on page three)

AGENTS TRAIL NELSON WIDOW

They're Certain She Was Present At Cowley-Hollis Slaying

BY ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 30. (UP)—The brown-haired widow of George (Babyface) Nelson, who abandoned her two children to cast her lot with her murderer husband, was sought today by justice departments agents as an accomplice in the slaying of two federal men who gave their lives to bring down the bandit Nelson.

A slim, blue-eyed woman—believed to have dyed her hair red—she was sought in Chicago and Wisconsin underworld haunts. With her, it was understood, was a male companion, variously reported to be Alvin Karpis, St. Paul hoodlum wanted in the Bremer kidnaping; John Hamilton, last major member of the Dillinger gang, and one John Chase of San Francisco.

Authorities were certain she was the woman present at the slaying of Inspector Samuel P. Cowley and Herman E. Hollis, department of justice agents, at Barrington in their Tuesday night machine gun battle with Nelson, found dazed in a ditch at Niles Center yesterday.

Mrs. Nelson, whose killer husband's real name was Lester Gillis, originally was wanted for harboring John Dillinger and Tommy Carroll, Dillinger henchman, both of whom are dead.

Federal agents arrested her at Madison, Wis., April 25, after the escape of Dillinger, Nelson and others of the gang escaped from a federal trap at Little Bohemia. It was during this escape that Nelson murdered W. C. Baum, justice department agent.

A sentence of 18 months was suspended and she was placed on probation. A theory was that federal men hoped her freedom would lead them to Nelson.

Shortly after her release, Nelson, with federal men even then seeking him as zealously as they did Dillinger, drove up to his Southside apartment, picked up his wife and drove away with her without interference. Her probation was revoked immediately.

Her two children, Arlene, 4, and Ronald, 5, are separated. Arlene was left with Nelson's mother, Mrs. Mary Gillis, 65, on the South Side. Ronald is said to be living with Mrs. Leona McMahon, one of Nelson's sisters, at Bremerton, Wash.

The tip that led to the finding of Nelson's body Wednesday was believed to have come indirectly from her. A man with a rough voice telephoned Philip Sadowski, (Continued on page three)
