THE GLOBE:

A Congressional, Agricultural and Literary Newspaper.

The approach of Congress calls out the Annual Position of the Globe Establishment.

The time is full of interest. The coming in of a new Administration—the consequent breaking of a new policy touching the internal concerns of the country—the new and most important issues arising from the late year's accession to the public domain, and the great national objects associated with it—the impending difficulty in our relations with France, and the possible complications of our affairs with the troubles of Europe—inspire to create great expectations as to the proceedings of the next Congress. The approaching Session will probably continue till late in the summer of 1850. The debates, from the agitation of so many questions of vital interest to the Republic, will draw forth all the talent of the National Legislature. To bring its deliberations home to the people, on each succeeding day, while measures are maturing, is, in effect, to bring the whole nation into council. The discussion, spreading from the Capitol to the remotest parts of the Union, forms a public opinion which rests upon Congress and controls its decisions.

To become a useful instrument, however humble, to assist the working of the admirable machinery of our popular institutions, is the ambition of the conductor of the Globe. Extraordinary preparations have herefore been made to meet the increasing demands of our rapidly-improving and growing country for Congressional intelligence.

The Globe Press has already enlisted the ablest Reporters yet known to Congress; its materials and machinery are of the best sort, and the exclusive devotion of the individual who for so many years has made it his study to embody and publish the labors of Congress, gives reason to hope that an advance will be made to the accomplishment of this undertaking commensurate with its increased importance. But the accumulation of expense consequent on the additional number of Reporters required—the extra charges incurred in printing at night the debates of the preceding day—the vast addition made to the mass published by the protracted sessions and the fuller reports given—will render our enterprise a failure, unless Congress shall so far patronize it as to purchase of each portion of the daily sheets as needed, shall contribute to make the reports that fill them. The undersigned has ventured on the preparation he has made for the next Session, in the expectation that Congress will subscribe for as many daily sheets as each Member, at the subscription price, as well, in part, defray the expense of reporting, and give them circulation as Congressional documents in their several districts. This will enable the Publisher to increase the circulation of the paper, and it will give an impetus to the circulation of the Congressional Print, which, although the cheapest in the market, (the expense of preparation considered) will yet yield sufficient profit to make the system permanent.

John C. Rives having purchased the interest of F. P. Blair in Jackson Hall—the printing office, machinery and material—becomes the sole proprietor thereof, and will give his exclusive attention to the Congressional Department. J. C. Fickett, conductor of the Miscellaneous Department, with prayers for their permanent usefulness and prosperity.

The Globe will be published daily during the session of Congress, and weekly the remainder of the year, and will undergo distribution in the form of a Weekly Globe, a Congressional Globe, and an Appendix.

The Weekly Globe will contain Agricultural and miscellaneous articles; and will occasionally give debates of such importance as command universal interest.

The price of the Weekly Globe is reduced to one dollar, with a view to obtain a more general circulation. Subscribers who have hitherto paid $2 per annum, will be charged only $1 after the expiration of the first year.

The Congressional Globe will embody, as it has done for the last sixteen years, Congressional proceedings and debates exclusively.

The Appendix will embrace the revised speeches separately, and the messages of the President of the United States and the reports of the Heads of the Executive Departments.

The Congressional Globe and Appendix will be published as fast as the proceedings of Congress will make a number. Subscribers may expect one number of each week during the first four weeks of a session, and two or three numbers of each week afterwards, until the end of the session. Each volume will probably comprise two thousand royal quarto pages, of small type.

Complete indexes to the Congressional Globe and Appendix will be sent to subscribers as a part of the Congressional edition.

Postmasters of a political party aspect will appear in the Globe as they may elect, will be found in the Congressional reports. A paper assuming to be an impartial vehicle for all sides, cannot maintain its character if the editorial columns reflect a party hue.

TERMS.

For one copy of the Daily Globe (daily during the session of Congress, and weekly during the recess) a year, $5 00

For one copy of the Weekly Globe for one year, 1 00

For one copy of the Congressional Globe during the session, 3 00

For one copy of the Appendix during the session, 3 00

For four copies of either, or part of both during the session, 10 00

For ten copies of either, or part of both during the recess, 20 00

The prices for these papers are so low, that advance payments are indispensable to carry them on. Postmasters who may obtain subscribers will be allowed twenty per cent. on the subscription price for single papers, which they may retain when they send the names of subscribers and the subscription money. The price for the Congressional Globe and Appendix to Clubs who take ten copies, is so low, that no deduction can be afforded. Subscriptions may be permitted by mail, at our risk, in money at par in the portion of country where subscribers reside.

The Congressional Globe and Appendix, or the Daily Globe, as they may elect, will be sent to all addresses who may publish this Prospectus as often as three times before the first Monday in December, and send us one copy of their paper containing it distinctly marked around with a post to direct our attention to it.
