We are trav'lers who seek for a bester clime-The repose of the sad and wears; And our journeyings over the waste of time, Often seem to us lone and dreary ! Yet there oft springeth joy from the lengthened way, To refresh for the toil before us,

And the suctlings of hope, like a constant ray, Shed their beams of contentment o'er as.

THE "MAJOR."

We were much amused the other day with the Major's story of his first adventure in jewelry. In due time the Major got married, as all young folks are bound to do, and in the course of time, he found himself to New Orleans with an extra hundred dellars in his pocket.

Determined to do things up handsomely, in the way of presenting his wife with some costly presents, he marched into a jewelry store, resolved to spend thirty or forty dollars for trinkets, under the delusion that a sum so enormous would buy "everything and more too." The ever attentive clerk waited on his summons, and handed out a variety of the "low priced," varying from one dellar to

The Major examined the resortment with a critleal eye, felt of his forty dollars with a grandiloquent air, and ordered something expensive, fan- MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, eying that it would reach as high as "three cents." The clerk placed upon a glass case two moroe-co covered boxes, which, upon being opened, presented a variety of necklices and finger-rings. The Major eyed the collections in a very critical memer, and said that he would take the largest box, demanding the price while pulling out his wallet "You can," said the clerk with solemnity, "have that box for ten thousand dollars." Internally the Major felt astonished; outside he was cool as a cucumber-the price had gone 'ever his pile,' and his expectations, just nine thousand nine hundred and seventy-five dollars.

With a nang froid that sunk into the heart of the clerk, be said :

"Is that the highest priced jewelry you have in your store?"

The clerk said, "It was just then."

"Well," drawled the Major, waving his hand dear he left the store .- N. O. Delta.

SOUTHERN VINEYARDS AND NURSE- TO THE PEOPLE OF NORTH CAROLINA, REVOLUTION IN PERIODICAL LITERA-

The history of our Revolutionary struggle in North Carolina is fertile in events both tragic and Holden's Dollar Magzine and Monthly manne; and in many instances the two are so unsected as to be insuparable. Writers have been upd in several portions of the Union, who have ndertaken to rescue from oblivion the Revolu ary incidents of their respective localities; but as yet North Carolina has found no one to undertake he task for her. Unworthy and incompetent as I am to do justice to the subject, and unprepared as I am to devote that time and attention to it which its importance demands; yet I am willing to lend my feeble aid in bringing up from the abyss of forgetfulness the deeds and transactions of our ation that lived in "the time that tried men's we and at a period (as is now apparent) when the world began to throw off the shackles of tyranny. and to emerge from the darkness of oppressi gnorance, and superstition, into the light of libery. knowledge and true religion.
