POETRY.

LINES BY MILTON IN HIS OLD AGE.

I am old and blind ! Men point at me as smitten by God's frown ; Afflicted and descried of my kind; Yet I am not cast down.

I am weak, yet strong ; I murmur not that 1 no longer see ; Poor, old, and helpless, I the more belong, Father Supreme t to Thee.

Oh! merciful One ! When men are farthest, then Thou art most near When triends pass by, my weakness shun, Thy chariot I hear.

Thy glorious face Is leaning toward me; and its holy light Shines in upon my lonely dwelling-place, And there is no more night.

On my bended knee I recognise Thy purpose, clearly shown ; My vision Thou hast dimmed, that I may see Thyself-Thyself alone.

I have naught to fear; This darkness is the shadow of Thy wing; Beneath it I am almost sacred; here Can come no evil thing.

Oh ! I seem to stand Trembling, where foot of mortal ne'er hath been Wrapp'd in the radiance of Thy sinless land, Which eye hath never seen.

Visions come and go ; Shapes of resplendent beauty round me throng ; From angel lips I seem to hear the flow Of soft and holy song.

It is nothing now, When heaven is opening on my sightlesseyes-The earth in darkness lies.

Iu a purer clime My being fills with rapture-waves of thought in upon my spirit-strains sublime Break over me unsought.

Give me now my lyre ! -I feel the stirrings of a gift divine, Within my bosom glows unearthly fire, Lit by no skill of mine.

KENNETH-A ROMANCE.

from the chamber-a procession of death moving along the silent gallery, lighted only by the pale and fitful lamp which one of the M'Alpine's followers carried in his hand .---This sublime and affecting production was late-ly discovered among the remains of the great epic poet, and is published in the recent Oxford edition of Million's Works: M'Alpiue's followers carried in his hand.— On the right hand of the Marquis walked Indulf; on his left was the younger brother; each with a drawn claymore in his hand. On the right hand of the Marquis walked each with a drawn claymore in his hand, ready to cut him dowr, if he dared venture on resistance. But this was scarcely possible. Bound and gagged was he thus led on to his doom;-he who had lately led armies on to battle !

The idea of escape darted into his mind, only to discard it in despair. The swords of meeting death from those naked weaponswounds, and in that condition be still dragged onward to the fate which it thus seemed in September, 1847; also, the Medals of the three impossible to avoid.

The mere process of revolving all these ideas in his mind-of weighing, and balanc- given to the Cherry Pectoral, by their Government ing, and estimating the chances for and against the desperate alternatives which sug gested themselves,-this process, we say, was in itself an excruciation : and thus did and City of it seem as if the wretched nobleman was marching on from horror to horror, even through the mazes of his own self-torturing, self-harrowing imagination ! They were now ascending the stairs towards the roof of the Donjon ; and though the tread of nine men thus proceeding along stone passages and up granite steps, was necessarily accompanied with heavy sounds and awakened proportionate echoes, yet did it appear as if none of the menials who slept on the upper stories were awakened by the noise. Not a door opened-not a going on : sleep was then on every eye .--Heavens ! that men could thus sleep, while a fellow-man was being led past their very cough continued to grow worse, and when I arrived in New York, I was at once marked by my chambers to the doom of death.

And now the little procession began to his lively and creative imagination may rev- up a little turret whence a door opened on use.
